STATES IN CORN BELT TAKE PART IN CONFERENCES

Plan Termed Balance Wheel To Assure Prosperity For Farmers

INDIANAPOLIS IS SCENE

Compulsory Mart Control Asked By Secretary

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind, Nov. 8—(UP)—The proposed ever-normal granary plan, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace told farm delegations from 13 mid-western states today, is an "economic balance wheel" that will assure prosperity for America's corn belt farmers.

In a nationally broadcast address considered especially significant because it is only one week before congress convenes to enact a permanent farm program, Wallace gave a detailed explanation of the administration's aims and desires on farm legislation.

The secretary announced one new phase of the program—compulsory marketing control during storage periods to force non-cooperating farmers to keep a designated portion of their crop under seal.

DAIRY FARMERS ASK HELP FROM NEXT CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(UP)—Dairy state legislators opened a drive today to force the house agriculture committee to include in the new farm bill a program of benefits for the nations butter, cheese and milk producers.

Headed by Representative August H. Andresen, Republican, Minn., a bloc of congressmen planned to meet with Charles Holman, Washington representative of the National Cooperative Milk Producers federation to work out details of a proposed three-point program for dairy farmers.

The program includes:

1. Increased tariff on dairy product imports as well as vegetable oils.

2. Regulation of imports so that the incoming products will have to meet the same sanitary requirements as the domestic—a provision that would amount to embargo in some cases, bloc members said.

3. Limitation on the use of cotton and tobacco acreage for dairying purposes.

Suit Citing Black Hit By Court

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(UP)—The supreme court today rebuffed another challenge to the right of Justice Hugo L. Black to sit on the high bench as the new justice revealed he is now participating fully in his supreme court duty.

The court denied a petition by a group of Florida securities dealers for reconsideration of their motion seeking to bring an appeal against the constitutionality of the Securities and Exchange commission. In requesting reconsideration the Florida group charged that Black was not legally a member of the court and that they had been injured by his participation in consideration of their petition.

The order of the supreme court denying the request did not indicate Black had absented himself from participation in the case. Absence of specific indication to the contrary usually indicates that the justice has participated in consideration of a petition.

BLACK'S INITIAL DECISION FAVORS U. S. COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — (UP) —Associate Justice Hugo L. Black today presented the first formal decision of the supreme court's 1937-38 term.

Black's opinion, the first presented as the court met today, concerned a case and desist order issued by the Federal Trade Commission against the Standard Education society, publishers of a standard encyclopedia.

Black's opinion upheld the plea of the trade commission that the second circuit court of appeals decision modifying the commission's order against the firm be set aside. The supreme court ordered the case remanded for further findings before the trade commission.

CRASH OF HIRED AIRPLANE FATAL TO TWO YOUTHS

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 8 — (UP) — Two youths crashed to their death in a hired airplane Sunday, 35 minutes after they left the Barnard airport at Youngstown, Ohio.

The victims were Alex Sroczynski, 19, of New Castle, the pilot who had obtained a limited pilot license in September, and Daniel Burick, 26, of Chewton, Pa., near here.

Anna Hahn After Verdict

MRS. ANNA MARIE HAHN, 31-year-old mother, termed by the prosecution the greatest "mass murderess" in history, was convicted by a jury in Cincinnati, and the death penalty decreed. She is pictured here with her attorney (rear) being escorted from the court after hearing the verdict.

Attorneys To Contest Anna Hahn's Conviction

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8—(UP)—Attorneys for Anna Marie Hahn, condemned to die in the electric chair for the murder of Jacob Wagner, 78, were expected to ask a new trial for the blonde German immigrant today.

Judge Charles S. Bell delayed sentencing until her counsel had an opportunity to file such a motion.

Joseph Hoodin and Hiram Bolsinger, Mrs. Hahn's attorneys, were expected to base their plea for a new trial on the grounds that submission of "collateral evidence" in connection with the deaths of others than Wagner was illegal. If the motion is denied, Bolsinger indicated the case would be carried to higher courts.

Mrs. Hahn, who was almost hysterical in her cell after hearing the jury's verdict Saturday, regained her composure Sunday and spent a quiet day.

Jail attendants said Mrs. Hahn cried far into Saturday night, saying over and over: "I am innocent. They set out to get me and now they have got me."

Guards kept watch over Mrs. Hahn to see that she did not attempt suicide.

CIANO'S MESSAGE ENDS MUSSOLINI'S BRIEF VACATION

ROME, Nov. 8.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini hurried back to Rome by airplane today, cutting short a visit to Forli after Foreign Minister Count Ciano had telephoned him, presumably in connection with Italy's adherence to the German-Japanese alliance against Communism.

Well informed sources said Count Ciano telephoned to his father-in-law after Boris E. Stein, Soviet ambassador, had talked with him at the foreign office.

Mussolini, responded to messages of felicitation on his adherence to the agreement, cabled today:

To Fuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany — "Through the Anti-Communist pact Italy and Germany have established a new reason for solidarity between themselves as well as with Japan toward common defense of civilization and world peace."

To Prince Fumimaro Konoye, Premier of Japan—"Relations of cordial friendship between Italy and Japan, as well as a determination to collaborate actively with Germany in the common task of defending peace and order in the world, have found their expression in the pact."

CADY LISTS $106 AS EXPENSES IN CITY'S ELECTION

William B. Cady, mayor-elect of Circleville, spent $106.84 on his campaign. His expense account was filed Monday with Lawrence Johnson, clerk of the board of elections. The account is the first filed by city candidates.

Mr. Cady's report showed he spent $21.50 for sample ballots and campaign cards, $3.84 for gasoline, $80 for ward workers and $1.50 for a picture.

Candidates have 10 days after election to file their expense accounts.

DUKE CONSIDERS TRIP TO AUSTRIA, FRENCH RIVIERA

PARIS, Nov. 8 — (UP) — The Duke of Windsor has decided to study housing conditions right here in Paris, it was understood today, and then—within a week or two, perhaps—to seek rest in Austria or on the French Riviera.

Spokesmen for the duke denied reports that he had decided 1) to go to the United States in February; 2) to go to Denmark; 3) to go to Russia; 4) to go back to Britain. The spokesman said he had decided nothing, as regards traveling. It was understood that his brother, King George VI, called him by telephone yesterday and that the duke was unable to tell even him, in response to a question, what his plans were because he had made none.

Sources close to the duke said that he had decided two things—first, to postpone his American visit indefinitely; second, that when and if he did make it, to do so without an official sponsor such as Charles E. Bedaux.

Speculation on the possibility that the duke would go to the United States later continued active. Persons close to the duke said they could only speculate because no decision had been made, but it was most unlikely he would go before late next Spring or next Summer.

Toledo Girl Dies Suddenly At Yeagley Home, Defiance

Mr. and Mrs. Joe W. Adkins, Jr., E. Mound street, were called to Defiance, O., early Sunday by the death of Miss Elizabeth Switser, 22, of Toledo. Miss Switser, who was a bride's maid at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Adkins, was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Clyde Yeagley, Mrs. Adkins' parents, when she died after a heart attack.

Miss Switser had been a visitor in Circleville several times.

The funeral will be Tuesday.

Three Minor Crashes Mar Week-End Traffic

Three traffic accidents, in which no one was hurt, were reported to city and county officers Saturday night.

Autos driven by Forest Storts, 138 Town street, and Mrs. Della Williams, S. Washington street, were involved in a collision on Route 23 about three miles south of Circleville.

Police said cars driven by Harvey Mills, 493 E. Water street, Chillicothe, and Harold Davis, S. Court street, Circleville, were in a collision on E. Main street between Court and Pickaway streets. Police said the accident occurred when Davis backed from the curb.

Milton Friedman, E. Mound street, told police an auto he was driving and one driven by Edward Leisure, Circleville Route 1, bumped on Court street near Mound.

Ohio's Auto Toll Climbs to 13

BY UNITED PRESS

A truck-automobile collision three miles south of Monroeville that claimed the lives of a father, son, and daughter swelled the week-end accidental death toll in Ohio to at least 13.

The dead in the collision, which occurred after the truck had crossed a narrow bridge, were Walter Didelius, 51; Milda, 20, and Richard, 15. Mrs. Didelius was in a Norwalk hospital with injuries.

Miss Helen Stockmeyer, 34, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile after she fell while running for a bus in Cincinnati.

Irvin Baker, 33, Cincinnati, was killed when struck by an automobile near Franklin.

Two women, Mrs. Bessie O'Brien, 50, and Mrs. Elene Ulen, 70, were killed in separate accidents when struck by automobile while crossing streets in Cleveland.

Mrs. Joan Prodan, 21, Cleveland, received fatal injuries in an automobile accident in Lake county.

At Oberlin, Donald Ray Perry, 19, Cleveland, Oberlin college student, was fatally injured when an automobile struck the bicycle he was riding.

Miss Theresa Eacona, 20, Niles, was killed in a collision between two automobiles near Youngstown.

Struck by a transport truck trailer as he walked on route 42, two miles east of South Charleston, Scott Allison, 40, Jeffersonville farmer, received fatal injuries.

When the automobile he was riding in Akron leaped the curb, Charles Bohnenberger, 64, was killed.

Miss Erma Little, 19, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile in Urbana.

POLICE OFFICERS GO TO COURT IN LIQUOR HEARINGS

Police Chief William McCrady and Patrolmen George Green and Carl Radcliff will go to Columbus Tuesday to be witnesses in federal court in two liquor cases.

McCrady was called in the case of Fred Carvey, Jr., 26, of Five Points, arrested following a raid on a farm between Williamsport and Five Points last Summer. Three stills were confiscated.

The other officers were called in cases pending against two Columbus negroes arrested here. Eight five-gallon cans of illegal liquor were confiscated.

FAILURE TO STOP COSTS AKRON AUTO DRIVER $25

Eugene Paul Braucher, of Akron, paid a fine of $25 and costs to H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, Sunday, on a charge of reckless driving filed by H. W. Anderson, state highway patrolman.

Eveland said the charge resulted from Braucher failing to stop at the intersection of Routes 104 and 22.

County Corn Crop Places 10th in U. S.

Department of Agriculture Lists 50 Outstanding Centers

Pickaway county is tenth in the nation in the production of sweet corn. The rating was revealed Monday in a survey released by the department of agriculture covering the 50 leading sweet corn production counties of the United States.

The county previously had been listed in 15th position. Farmers of Pickaway county, the report shows, are planting 5,214 production acres of sweet corn as compared to 4,018 in 1929.

Iroquois county, Ill., leads the nation in sweet corn production. Eleven counties in Illinois are in the first 50 leading producing counties. That state produces 10 percent of the sweet corn in the United States.

YOUTH, 15, ADMITS SHOOTING MAN IN MOTHER'S DEFENSE

WHITEHALL, Mich., Nov. 8—(UP)—Floyd Peterson, 45, Grand Rapids newspaperman, was shot and killed here early today by the 15-year-old son of Mrs. Ruby Gee, middle-aged widow, at whose home he had been staying.

The youth, Foster Gee, 10th grade student at Whitehall high school, ran immediately to the home of R. B. Merrick, deputy sheriff, and confessed the killing. He said he shot Peterson after he had threatened his mother with a revolver.

Nervous and distraught at his act, the youth told Merrick he fired a shotgun charge into Peterson's head when the newspaperman pointed a gun at Mrs. Gee and threatened to kill her. "He threatened to kill me too," the youth sobbed.

Foster told Merrick that Peterson and Mrs. Gee had been out together at supper time and returned about 1:15 a. m.

"They had been quarrelling," he said, "and Peterson had been drinking. He pulled a gun and pointed it at my mother. Then he pointed it at me. I got a shotgun and killed him."

"TURKEY SHOOT" PLANNED FOR VETERANS' FROLIC

A "turkey shoot" will be one of the features offered Thursday evening when Howard Hall post, American Legion, celebrates Armistice Day. The shoot will be conducted in the post room following the party. Adrian Yates, post commander, and Jay Clark will be in charge.

Persons wishing to participate in the shoot may take their own rifles. However, none over .22 caliber will be permitted. Two target rifles will be available at the hall. Classes will be arranged for men and women.

The Legion is planning a big evening with many social and patriotic organizations urged to participate in the parade. A dance and entertainment will follow the parade.

CHINESE FORCES FACE ISOLATION SOUTH OF CITY

Tokyo's Troops Cross River Despite Machine Gun Fire; Reinforcements Suffer

FLANK ATTACK NIPPED

Retreating Army Destroys Big Rail Bridge

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8—(UP)—Japanese troops fought their way across the Whangpoo river 17 miles south of Shanghai today and Gen. Iwane Matsui, Japanese army commander in chief, predicted that his men would isolate the Chinese from Shanghai by tomorrow night.

Reports indicated that losses on both sides were large. The Japanese had to fight their way across the Whangpoo in the face of a devastating machine gun fire. The point at which they crossed is about six miles east of Sunkiang, where the river is 200 feet wide and the current is swift. While the Chinese machine gunners raked the Japanese with their fire, Japanese airplanes bombed Chinese reinforcements hurrying southward from Shanghai.

Flanking Prevented

Japanese failed, according to Chinese spokesmen, in three efforts to land men on the Whangpoo immediately below Shanghai, in an effort to co-operate in a flanking attack on the Pootung section.

Pootung is the Chinese-controlled part of Shanghai across the river from the international settlement. Though Chinese denied it, Japanese reported that Chinese troops were withdrawing from Pootung, and to bear out this assertion, junks and sampans crossed and re-crossed the river today bringing Chinese civilians with their possessions—even chickens and fire wood—from Pootung to the settlement side.

Foreign naval commanders met yesterday aboard the United States cruiser Augusta, flagship of Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, the American commander in chief, and it was believed they discussed the new dangers to foreigners threatened by the incursion of refugees.

Japanese airplanes, with the return of good weather this morning, went out in great fleets to bomb the Chinese south and west of the city. The Japanese advanced further southward on the west side of the city, down from Soochow creek. Chinese blew up a big railroad bridge about 4,000 yards south of the creek—an indi-

AIDE TO CORONER SHOT IN ABDOMEN BY UNKNOWN MAN

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 8 — (UP) — David L. McHenry, 39, assistant Clark county coroner, was in a hospital today with a bullet wound in the abdomen, inflicted by an unidentified assailant.

After an emergency operation for removal of the bullet, McHenry's condition was described as "just fair."

McHenry was shot near a downtown garage by a man who stepped from his automobile. McHenry attempted to drive to police headquarters, but collapsed with his arm resting on the horn button. Police took him to the hospital.

BINGO AND KEENO GAMES FLAYED BY PROSECUTOR

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8 — (UP) — Acting Police Prosecutor Sidney B. Fink announced today he would demand maximum penalties for operators of "bingo" and "keeno" games.

He pointed out that operators of such games are liable to maximum fines of $500 and 90 days in jail.

Every police precinct commander was ordered to "use as many men as necessary" to prevent operations of the games.

DAIRY FARMERS ASK HELP FROM NEXT CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(UP)—Dairy state legislators opened a drive today to force the house agriculture committee to include in the new farm bill a program of benefits for the nations butter, cheese and milk producers.

Headed by Representative August H. Andresen, Republican, Minn., a bloc of congressmen planned to meet with Charles Holman, Washington representative of the National Cooperative Milk Producers federation to work out details of a proposed three-point program for dairy farmers.

The program includes:

1. Increased tariff on dairy product imports as well as vegetable oils.

2. Regulation of imports so that the incoming products will have to meet the same sanitary requirements as the domestic—a provision that would amount to embargo in some cases, bloc members said.

3. Limitation on the use of cotton and tobacco acreage for dairying purposes.

Suit Citing Black Hit By Court

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(UP)—The supreme court today rebuffed another challenge to the right of Justice Hugo L. Black to sit on the high bench as the new justice revealed he is now participating fully in his supreme court duty.

The court denied a petition by a group of Florida securities dealers for reconsideration of their motion seeking to bring an appeal against the constitutionality of the Securities and Exchange commission. In requesting reconsideration the Florida group charged that Black was not legally a member of the court and that they had been injured by his participation in consideration of their petition.

The order of the supreme court denying the request did not indicate Black had absented himself from participation in the case. Absence of specific indication to the contrary usually indicates that the justice has participated in consideration of a petition.

Anna Hahn After Verdict

MRS. ANNA MARIE HAHN, 31-year-old mother, termed by the prosecution the greatest "mass murderess" in history, was convicted by a jury in Cincinnati, and the death penalty decreed. She is pictured here with her attorney (rear) being escorted from the court after hearing the verdict.

Attorneys To Contest Anna Hahn's Conviction

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8—(UP)—Attorneys for Anna Marie Hahn, condemned to die in the electric chair for the murder of Jacob Wagner, 78, were expected to ask a new trial for the blonde German immigrant today.

Judge Charles S. Bell delayed sentencing until her counsel had an opportunity to file such a motion.

Joseph Hoodin and Hiram Bolsinger, Mrs. Hahn's attorneys, were expected to base their plea for a new trial on the grounds that submission of "collateral evidence" in connection with the deaths of others than Wagner was illegal. A truck-automobile collision three miles south of Monroeville that claimed the lives of a father, son, and daughter swelled the week-end accidental death toll in Ohio to at least 13.

The dead in the collision, which occurred after the truck had crossed a narrow bridge, were Walter Didelius, 51; Milds, 20, and Richard, 15. Mrs. Didelius was in a Norwalk hospital with injuries.

Miss Helen Stockmeyer, 34, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile after she fell while running for a bus in Cincinnati.

Irvin Baker, 33, Cincinnati, was killed when struck by an automobile near Franklin.

Two women, Mrs. Bessie O'Brien, 50, and Mrs. Elene Ulen, 70, were killed in separate accidents in which they were struck by automobile while crossing streets in Cleveland.

Mrs. Joan Prodan, 21, Cleveland, received fatal injuries in an automobile accident in Lake county.

At Oberlin, Donald Ray Perry, 19, Cleveland, Oberlin college student, was fatally injured when an automobile struck the bicycle he was riding.

Miss Theresa Eacona, 20, Niles, was killed in a collision between two automobiles near Youngstown.

Struck by a transport truck trailer as he walked on route 42, two miles east of South Charleston, Scott Allison, 40, Jeffersonville farmer, received fatal injuries.

When the automobile he was riding in Akron leaped the curb, Charles Bohnenberger, 64, was killed.

Miss Erma Little, 19, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile in Urbana.

POLICE OFFICERS GO TO COURT IN LIQUOR HEARINGS

Police Chief William McCrady and Patrolmen George Green and Carl Radcliff will go to Columbus Tuesday to be witnesses in federal court in two liquor cases.

McCrady was called in the case of Fred Carvey, Jr., 26, of Five Points, arrested following a raid on a farm between Williamsport and Five Points last Summer. Three stills were confiscated.

The other officers were called in cases pending against two Columbus negroes arrested here. Eight five-gallon cans of illegal liquor were confiscated.

FAILURE TO STOP COSTS AKRON AUTO DRIVER $25

Eugene Paul Braucher, of Akron, paid a fine of $25 and costs to H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, Sunday, on a charge of reckless driving filed by H. W. Anderson, state highway patrolman.

Eveland said the charge resulted from Braucher failing to stop at the intersection of Routes 104 and 22.

County Corn Crop Places 10th in U. S.

Department of Agriculture Lists 50 Outstanding Centers

Pickaway county is tenth in the nation in the production of sweet corn. The rating was revealed Monday in a survey released by the department of agriculture covering the 50 leading sweet corn production counties of the United States.

The county previously had been listed in 15th position. Farmers of Pickaway county, the report shows, are planting 5,214 production acres of sweet corn as compared to 4,018 in 1929.

Iroquois county, Ill., leads the nation in sweet corn production. Eleven counties in Illinois are in the first 50 leading producing counties. That state produces 10 percent of the sweet corn in the United States.

YOUTH, 15, ADMITS SHOOTING MAN IN MOTHER'S DEFENSE

WHITEHALL, Mich., Nov. 8—(UP)—Floyd Peterson, 45, Grand Rapids newspaperman, was shot and killed here early today by the 15-year-old son of Mrs. Ruby Gee, middle-aged widow, at whose home he had been staying.

The youth, Foster Gee, 10th grade student at Whitehall high school, ran immediately to the home of R. B. Merrick, deputy sheriff, and confessed the killing. He said he shot Peterson after he had threatened his mother with a revolver.

Nervous and distraught at his act, the youth told Merrick he fired a shotgun charge into Peterson's head when the newspaperman pointed a gun at Mrs. Gee and threatened to kill her. "He threatened to kill me too," the youth sobbed.

Foster told Merrick that Peterson and Mrs. Gee had been out together at supper time and returned about 1:15 a. m.

"They had been quarrelling," he said, "and Peterson had been drinking. He pulled a gun and pointed it at my mother. Then he pointed it at me. I got a shotgun and killed him."

"TURKEY SHOOT" PLANNED FOR VETERANS' FROLIC

A "turkey shoot" will be one of the features offered Thursday evening when Howard Hall post, American Legion, celebrates Armistice Day. The shoot will be conducted in the post room following the party. Adrian Yates, post commander, and Jay Clark will be in charge.

Persons wishing to participate in the shoot may take their own rifles. However, none over .22 caliber will be permitted. Two target rifles will be available at the hall. Classes will be arranged for men and women.

The Legion is planning a big evening with many social and patriotic organizations urged to participate in the parade. A dance and entertainment will follow the parade.

CHINESE FORCES FACE ISOLATION SOUTH OF CITY

Tokyo's Troops Cross River Despite Machine Gun Fire; Reinforcements Suffer

FLANK ATTACK NIPPED

Retreating Army Destroys Big Rail Bridge

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8—(UP)—Japanese troops fought their way across the Whangpoo river 17 miles south of Shanghai today and Gen. Iwane Matsui, Japanese army commander in chief, predicted that his men would isolate the Chinese from Shanghai by tomorrow night.

Reports indicated that losses on both sides were large. The Japanese had to fight their way across the Whangpoo in the face of a devastating machine gun fire. The point at which they crossed is about six miles east of Sunkiang, where the river is 200 feet wide and the current is swift. While the Chinese machine gunners raked the Japanese with their fire, Japanese airplanes bombed Chinese reinforcements hurrying southward from Shanghai.

Flanking Prevented

Japanese failed, according to Chinese spokesmen, in three efforts to land men on the Whangpoo immediately below Shanghai, in an effort to co-operate in a flanking attack on the Pootung section.

Pootung is the Chinese-controlled part of Shanghai across the river from the international settlement. Though Chinese denied it, Japanese reported that Chinese troops were withdrawing from Pootung, and to bear out this assertion, junks and sampans crossed and re-crossed the river today bringing Chinese civilians with their possessions—even chickens and fire wood—from Pootung to the settlement side.

Foreign naval commanders met yesterday aboard the United States cruiser Augusta, flagship of Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, the American commander in chief, and it was believed they discussed the new dangers to foreigners threatened by the incursion of refugees.

Japanese airplanes, with the return of good weather this morning, went out in great fleets to bomb the Chinese south and west of the city. The Japanese advanced further southward on the west side of the city, down from Soochow creek. Chinese blew up a big railroad bridge about 4,000 yards south of the creek—an indi-

AIDE TO CORONER SHOT IN ABDOMEN BY UNKNOWN MAN

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 8 — (UP) — David L. McHenry, 39, assistant Clark county coroner, was in a hospital today with a bullet wound in the abdomen, inflicted by an unidentified assailant.

After an emergency operation for removal of the bullet, McHenry's condition was described as "just fair."

McHenry was shot near a downtown garage by a man who stepped from his automobile. McHenry attempted to drive to police headquarters, but collapsed with his arm resting on the horn button. Police took him to the hospital.

BINGO AND KEENO GAMES FLAYED BY PROSECUTOR

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8 — (UP) — Acting Police Prosecutor Sidney B. Fink announced today he would demand maximum penalties for operators of "bingo" and "keno" games.

He pointed out that operators of such games are liable to maximum fines of $500 and 90 days in jail.

Every police precinct commander was ordered to "use as many men as necessary" to prevent operations of the games.

Miss Tolbert To Select County Singers

Ira C. Fisher, Walnut township, and T. M. Glick, Circleville township, were elected delegates to the annual Ohio Farm Bureau federation meeting to be held in Columbus, Nov. 18 and 19, at a membership meeting of the Pickaway county Farm Bureau Saturday night.

Alternates elected were Lawrence Liston, Circleville township, and Mrs. Virginia Thacher, Jackson township.

Miss Mary Ruth Tolbert, of Pickaway township music instructor at Walnut township school, has been appointed to select a group of singers of Pickaway county to take part in a chorus of 500 persons to sing in Columbus on Nov. 18 in connection with the meeting.

Local Farm Bureau officials said important legislation to be discussed at the state meeting will include sales tax, income tax, corn crib loans, motor vehicle laws concerning the use of tractors on highways and government maintenance of fence along highways.

FARM NEWS

Brief Items of Interest to Pickaway Farmers

Fall planting of roses is recommended in preference to spring planting in Ohio because the plants will have a better chance to become established for the following summer.

Ohio farmers can learn how and where to obtain poison bait suitable for the eradication of rats by visiting their county agricultural agent. These baits are dangerous only to rodents for which they are intended.

Government tests of applications of fertilizer on tomatoes in 1937 indicated that increasing applications from 1,500 pounds per acre to 2,025 or 2,625 pounds per acre did not result in earlier fruit nor in increasing the yield of No. 1 tomatoes.

The carryover of corn in the United States from the 1937-38 feeding season is expected to exceed 300,000,000 bushels and will be about twice the amount usually left after the feeding period is completed. This supply situation is already being reflected in the price quotations for the 1937 crop.

Turning Ohio livestock on pasture during the winter months does not provide much feed for them and may result in considerable damage to the pasture itself. Trampling by the livestock may puddle wet soils, and holes punched through the wet turf may start erosin that becomes hard to control.

As a result of the vote taken among producers of potatoes in the United States, that crop will be included among those for which acreage goals are to be set by the 1938 agricultural conservation program. However, acreage goals will apply only on farms producing more than three acres of potatoes and which are located in counties where the crop is a major farm enterprise.

Ohio State Upset By Indiana, 10-0

FIFTY thousand football fans saw the Indiana Hoosiers bounce into the football sun at Columbus, when they handed the Ohio State a 10 to 0 upset defeat. Nick Wasylik, of Ohio State, indicated by arrow, is shown after he ran a punt 37 yards to move the ball into Hoosier territory right after the second period began.

Schmidt Juggles His Bucks After Beating

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—(UP)—Ohio State today found itself ranked as "just another team" and had all championship hopes wiped away following a 10 to 0 defeat at the hands of Indiana.

The Bucks sudden drop in the national gridiron ratings was the penalty they were paying for the most costly of all gridiron mistakes—poor generalmanship.

The Bucks received questionable quarterbacking to numerous occasions earlier in the season, but each time the power of their vaunted line had minimized these tactical blunders. Saturday, it was a different story with Indiana possessing the superior line.

Francis A. Schmidt, the gruff Ohio State coach, frankly admitted the team received exceptionally poor direction against the Hoosiers, but he declined to censure the gridders responsible for the costly errors.

"It's easy enough to see what's wrong from the stands or the bench," Schmidt said, "But out on the field its different. The quarterbacks made mistakes and they cost us plenty. We'll have to do something about it before the next two games."

McDonald To Fullback

Schmidt made an immediate move in this direction when he announced that Co-Captain Jim McDonald, who has been stationed at quarterback all season, would be switched back to his old fullback post.

With the switch of McDonld Mike Kabealo will move into the first string quarterback position with Nick Wasylik as his understudy. Kabealo's place at left half will be filled by Jim Miller or Bill Phillips, neither of whom have seen a great bit of service thus far.

Wasylik was one of the five Buck players injured in the Indiana battle, but it is expected he will be in shape for the Illinois game here Saturday.

The other injured players were: Co-Captain Ralph Wolf, with a bruised shoulder; Fred Crow, a bruised ankle; Alex Schoenbaum, injured knee; and Johnny Rabb, injured knee.

All except Rabb are expected to round into shape before the Illinois contest. Rabb re-injured a knee that was hurt originally last Spring. The ligaments were torn and he probably will not play again until the final game of the season against Michigan.

Outside the player shifts in the backfield, one other lineup change may be made. Schmidt considered giving Vic Marino, rugged little Youngstown sophomore, the regular left guard position. Marino looked exceptionally good when he relieved the veteran Sol Maggied against Indiana.

Schmidt termed Indiana a "good, but not a great team."

Davis Wins Praise

The Buck coach praised Corby Davis, the hard-hitting Hoosier fullback, as one of the finest backs to show against Ohio this season.

When Ohio State failed to score against Indiana it marked only the second time in four seasons under Schmidt the Bucks have not garnered a point. The other occasion was against Pittsburgh last year.

Indiana's victory Saturday was clean-cut and thoroughly deserved. It marked the first Hoosier triumph over Ohio State since 1924.

Funeral Services Tuesday For George B. Dresbach, 71

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Frankfort M. E. church for George B. Dresbach, 71, who died at his home in Roxabell, Ross county, Saturday.

Mr. Dresbach was the father of Mrs. W. M. Drake, and Walter Dresbach, Mt. Sterling; Mrs. William Jones and Ansel Dresbach, Williamsport.

Millar's Setter Wins Open Amateur Stake

Jerry Nugym Whitestone, English setter owned and handled by B. S. Millar, secretary of the Pickaway County Bird Dog club, won first place Sunday in the amateur all-age stake of the club's Fall field trials at Yellowbud. Mr. Millar resides near South Bloomfield. There were 15 dogs in the stake.

Second place was won by Arlington Comanche Gypsy, pointer, owned and handled by Joseph M. Stewart, of Columbus. Third place was divided by Buckeye Stages, pointer, owned and handled by Ralph Sanborn, Columbus, and Ziegfeld Shoals Heir, pointer, handled by Bowsher, of Xenia.

Winners in the amateur derby, held Sunday, were: first, Adonis, pointer, owned and handled by Harry Wicker, of Akron; second, Miss Linda, setter, handled by Winant, of Dayton, and third. Missy's Prissy Pepper, pointer, owned by T. W. Tinker, McArthur. Nine dogs participated.

Open stakes were held on Saturday. Winners of the open derby were: first, Rex Village Boy, pointer, handled by W. L. Cosner, Newark, and owned by J. M. Stewart, Columbus; second, Streamline, pointer, handled by W. D. Hinson, Huntington, and owned by Theo Hundley, Huntington; third divided by Cinco, pointer, handled by O. S. Redman, Wellston, and owned by G. F. Gobright, Detroit, and Missy's Prissy Pepper, pointer, handled by Robert Wills, McArthur, and owned by S. R. Cline, McArthur.

The last dog named was sold during the trials by Mr. Cline to Mr. Tinker. Ten dogs were entered in the open derby.

Awards in the open puppy stake were given as follows: first, Polly Mostone, handled by W. D. Hinson, Huntington; second, Jolly Roger Sonny, handled by Bob Dummit, Ashland, Ky., and third, Teeter Totter, owned and handled by Dr. R. M. Andre, Waverly. Only four dogs were listed in the open puppy event.

ANNA NEAGLE

Anna Neagle, who has just made the hit of the season on the screen as Queen Victoria in RKO Radio's "Victoria the Great," will be heard for the first time on the air as a dramatic actress on Sunday, November 14, when she joins Don Ameche, Nelson Eddy, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Dorothy Lamour, the Stroud Twins and Robert Armbruster's orchestra for the broadcast over the NBC red network at 8:00 p. m. (EST).

Miss Neagle is a British star who has just come to this country for the American premiere of "Victoria the Great," a picture that was made in England and has already been running for many weeks in London.

The success of her portrayal of Queen Victoria on the screen makes Miss Neagle's dramatic debut on the air here of considerable interest and even Charlie McCarthy should be impressed with the fact that she makes this debut on the Chase and Sanborn Hour.

The dramatic feature of the evening will have Miss Neagle and Don Ameche in leading roles.

Later in the hour Miss Neagle will be formally introduced to Charlie McCarthy, his first experience with a queen.

LUTHERAN CHURCH FILLED FOR ALL-DAY SERVICE ON 125th ANNIVERSARY

350 SEATED AT BANQUET DURING SUNDAY'S EVENT

Dr. Schneider, Rev. Boyer Aid Trinity's Pastors in Two Services

CHOIR PROVIDES MUSIC

History of Congregation To Present Day Traced

Following the themes voiced by their two pastors that "The Lord Has Done Great Things for Us Whereof We Are Glad" and "God's Grace Sufficient for the Unmarked Path", the congregation of Trinity Lutheran church, Sunday, observed 125 years of Lutheranism in Pickaway county. Dr. G. J. Troutman, who conducted the morning service, used the former quotation as the basis for his address, and his son and assistant, the Rev. G. L. Troutman, used the latter for his topic.

Dr. Troutman was assisted by Dr. J. H. Schneider, of Columbus, who served the Circleville church for 12 years from 1882 to 1894, and the Rev. G. L. Troutman was aided in conduct of the afternoon service by the Rev. Harry Boyer, of Columbus, a "son" of the Trinity Lutheran congregation, being one of nine pastors sent out from the local church.

Lutheranism was introduced to Circleville and Pickaway county Aug. 28, 1811, by the Rev. Jacob Leist. Sunday was chosen for celebration of the 125th anniversary.

Auditorium Filled

The church auditorium was crowded to overflowing for morning and afternoon services. At the noon hour, food that filled many tables in the parish house was served to more than 350 members of the congregation.

Dr. Troutman, who followed a call to Circleville in August, 1898, discussed the history of Lutheranism since it was brought to the county. He traced several of the families that were identified with the first Lutheran church, lamenting the fact that many of the names prominent at that time are heard no more in the community. "We are here for only a short time," the pastor said, "and I wonder how many of us will be remembered in the next century."

He traced the places of worship, declaring that the first service was probably held in a log cabin, later services being conducted in the courthouse, and, during dissension in the church, in public halls. A blacksmith shop was used at one time, he recalled. In 1831, $2,000 was subscribed to build the first church, but some of the subscribers failed to pay up, Dr. Troutman said, and the church was not completed for seven or eight years after the cornerstone was placed. Another church was erected in 1860 when $5,000 was gathered. The present structure was built in 1902.

15 Pastors Serve

The senior pastor told his congregation that 15 ministers had served the church in its 125 years. In August, 1938 Dr. Troutman will observe his fortieth year in the charge.

"To get members of our congregation to the Kingdom of Glory, is not our only objective," he said, "but we are trying to develop good citizens. I am proud of the place in the community that members of the Lutheran church hold. Our churchpeople have been good citizens."

He stressed the desire of the church to remain conservative. "The daily life of our people is based on conservatism," Dr. Troutman said. "Unless a church stands for something it will not get very far."

The minister told his congregation that he had buried one-tenth of the persons resting in Forest cemetery. He has baptised, married and communed more church members than any other pastor in Pickaway county during his service here.

Nine Enter Ministry

Trinity Lutheran church has sent nine of its "sons" into the ministry. They are the Revs. G. L. Troutman, Carl Fischer, Carl Herrenstein, Jacob Barthelmas, Harry Boyer, Ellis Snyder, Ben Westenbarger, Harry Adkins, and Aaron Ahn.

Dr. Troutman concluded his address by urging his congregation that: "We must labor together to assure the future development of our church."

He quoted the following as he retired:

My Church! my Church! my dear old Church!
My fathers' and my own!
On Prophets and Apostles built,
And Christ the cornerstone!
All else beside, by storm or tide,
May yet be overthrown;
But not my Church, my dear old Church,
My fathers' and my own.

Other parts of the morning service included the organ prelude: "Hour of Devotion" by Rathbun, played by Mrs. Karl Herrmann at the organ; processional "Holy, Holy Holy" by the mixed choir directed by Carl C. Leist; music, "Marche Pontificale" by Gounod, played by a string quartet comprised of Mrs. Charles Walters, Christian Schwarz, Gladden Troutman, and Carl Leist; anthem, "Gloria" by Mozart, by the choir; history of Trinity church by John D. Hummel, an elder in the church council and one of the leaders of the congregation; vocal solo, "My Task", by M. M. Sensenbrenner, and the recessional, "Triumphal March" by Morrison, played by Mrs. Herrmann.

350 Served Dinner

All the members of the congregation present, numbering 350, were seated at one time for the noon meal. Mrs. Wallace Crist acted as general chairman for the dinner. Serving with Mrs. Crist as co-chairman were Mrs. Edward Sensenbrenner, Mrs. Denny Pickens, Mrs. Charles Diehlman, and Mrs. Lawrence Athey. Assisting with the preparation of the dinner were Miss Magdalene Trump, Miss Susie Wilson, Mrs. Minnie Heise, Mrs. Ed Helwagen, Mrs. Claude Goodman, Mrs. Clarence Ater, Mrs. Harry Dreisbach, Mrs. John E. Walters, Mrs. Frank Palm, Mrs. Lena Thatcher, and Miss Hattie Delong. Many other women assisted in the dining room. Under the supervision of Mrs. Athey and Mrs. Sensenbrenner, the large room presented an attractive appearance. Four long white tables extended the length of the room, and down the centers of these at intervals were small pumpkins filled with gay vari-colored hardy chrysanthemums. Other larger pumpkins filled with flowers were used about the room.

George Griffith, a church deacon, acted as toastmaster after the dinner was served. Members of the congregation for more than 50 years were seated at one table, vestrymen and ex-vestrymen were at another, Sunday school teachers and ex-teachers, were at the third, the choir and former members were at another, and members of the Leist and Roof families, pioneers in the church, were grouped. Nearly 50 persons comprised the group that had been members of the church for 50 years or longer.

Many Offer Remarks

Remarks were offered by Dr. Schneider, C. A. Leist, who traced the Leist family history; Charles L. Mack, member of the vestry for 18 years; E. C. Ebert, representing the choir; Mrs. Denny Pickens, of the Sunday school; the Rev. Harry Boyer, and Edward Sensenbrenner, who read the "Lutheran Bulletin," in which much philosophy was included.

A picture of the Rev. David Leist, first Lutheran minister in Pickaway county, was placed in a conspicuous place in the parish house entrance. The picture is the property of Mrs. John Black, of Kingston, a descendant.

The afternoon service, conducted by the younger pastors, the Rev. G. L. Troutman and the Rev. Mr. Boyer, was impressive.

The church's junior pastor termed an anniversary of the kind celebrated Sunday as "a golden cord binding together a certain number of days and years."

"It is a fine thing," he said, "to reach such a pinnacle as we have gained, but we can not afford to look backward too long because there is a great future in front of us."

He placed the success of the future on three factors: 1. God; 2. the pastors, instruments of God's Grace; 3. the members, who are the recipients of God's Grace.

"All three are needed," he declared, "and all three are inseparable.

"If either fails all future progress ceases."

Evade Politics, Events

The Rev. Mr. Troutman stressed the necessity for teaching the Word of God and evading political discussions and sermons on events of the day. "We are here to preach for Jesus Christ," the minister told his listeners, "and not just to discuss varied topics in order to interest people in an effort to fill our auditorium."

The Rev. Mr. Troutman paid high tribute to his father for his service which covers almost one-third of the church's entire history in Circleville.

The junior pastor closed by saying:

"We must remain faithful to our confirmation vows to glorify God. We must keep the Sabbath Day holy. Any person who is unfaithful to his vow retards the progress of his church."

The highlights of Sunday afternoon's music were the solo, "The Earth is the Lord's", offered by the Rev. Ellis Snyder, director of the department of voice at Capital university, Columbus, and a former junior pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, and the choir's selection, "Open Our Eyes" by MacFarlane, Mr. Snyder singing a short solo part in this anthem, and a solo, "Thanks Be to God", by Reilley, sung by Mrs. Avery Eichinger, of Columbus.

History Recalled

A brief resume of the church history as discussed by Mr. Hummel follows:

By John C. Hummel

It was in the early part of 1811, that the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Pennsylvania delegated, the Rev. Jacob Leist to organize Lutheran congregations in central Ohio.

This pioneer preacher conducted his first service in Circleville, Aug. 25, 1811. This was also, in all probability, the first public preaching service conducted in our city.

Among the heads of Lutheran families were the following: Jacob Zeiger, George Zimmer, Samuel Watt, Philip Zeiger, Jacob Zeiger, Jr., John Valentine, Peter Apple, Valentine Keffer, Peter Tres, Heinrich Tres, Wm. Moyer, Peter Herbster, Heinrich Ely, Father Try, Anthony Weaver, John Weaver, John Row, M. Earnhardt and others.

The early history of Pickaway county and of the city of Circleville records that many of these early members of Circleville's earliest Lutheran church were very active in civic and political affairs. There are no records preserved antedating the year 1831, although a congregation existed previous to this date.

In May, 1831, the Rev. A. B. Little was called as pastor. During his pastorate in the year 1832, the cornerstone for a church was laid; but the structure was not completed during his regime. Pastor Little resigned after having served the congregation two and one-half years.

On Feb. 23, 1834, the congregation extended a call to Rev. J. A. Roof. It was during his administration, after many difficulties and discouragements, that the church edifice was finally completed and dedicated in 1839. Father Roof served the Lutheran people of this community with the Word and Sacraments for 21 years conducting the services in both the German and English languages.

Two years after the resignation of the Rev. Mr. Roof, in 1857, Rev. Joel Schwartz of Virginia became the pastor. During his pastorate a sad division took place in the congregation. This division was occasioned by the pastor refusing to subscribe to certain articles of the Augsburg confession. The Rev. Mr. Schwarz succeeded in getting a following. Dissension arose in the congregation, and after much unpleasantness and several years' litigation, the party claiming to be the original congregation decided to cease lawing, and build a church as soon as practicable.

In June, 1859, the Rev. Mr. Albrecht accepted a call but remained only until April, 1860, when Rev. John Wagenhals became pastor. During his pastorate the congregation obtained, by order of the court from the "director of the town" a lot known as the "Presbyterian or Public burying ground" and built thereon a brick church and gave it the name of "Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church."

The corner stone of the church was laid in 1865 and the edifice dedicated in 1866.

Wagenhals Resigns

In 1868, the Rev. Wagenhals resigned his charge on account of failing health and advanced age, having served the church for eight years.

The responsibilities of the pastoral office then fell on Rev. M. B. Lenker, who entered on his duties in 1868. Unfortunately contention arose in the congregation on account of synodical differences, and a number of families withdrew. The Rev. Mr. Lenker found it necessary to resign.

After this the church was closed for a time, and conditions were rather discouraging, when on Feb. 13, 1871, Rev. E. L. S. Tressel was chosen as spiritual leader. Under his influence and management, the church took on new life, but Rev. Tressel's stay was brief. He followed a call to Baltimore, Maryland, in 1874.

Rev. A. H. Schulze was the next minister to serve the charge. His regime began in October, 1874. His failing health made it difficult for him to comply with the demands of the people, yet he sought to fulfil his arduous duties faithfully and conscientiously until 1879.

The Rev. Mr. Schulze was followed by the Rev. A. Pflueger, who entered on his duties in 1879 and supplied the brethren with spiritual food until the end of 1881.

It was early in the year 1882 that Rev. J. H. Schneider became pastor, and his period of service lasted for 12 years. It was during his pastorate that the interior of the church was beautified, the pipe organ installed, a church school established and a school house built. This church school was operated and maintained under difficulties, but in the main was a great blessing to the congregation.

In 1894, S. W. Mautz, then a student in our Theological Seminary, was called to administer the Means of Grace. In 1895, teacher G. C. Schaub resigned his position in order to enter Capital university and prepare for the ministry. His resignation was accepted. The congregation called eight teachers, and the call was eight times declined. Unfortunately the school was discontinued. The Rev. Mr. Mautz served the congregation until April, 1898.

Rev. Troutman in 1898

In May of the same year, Rev. George J. Troutman, of Pennsylvania, received and accepted a call extended by the Circleville Parish, entering upon the discharge of his duties in August, 1898. In May, 1901, the congregation decided to build a new church, as soon as the necessary funds could be raised. The committee appointed to solicit funds reported favorably. The last service in the old church was conducted on February 9, 1902. At this service the Lord's Supper was celebrated, and a large number communed, possibly more than at any one time so far in the history of the church.

The cornerstone of the now existing church, was laid on July 20, 1902 and the edifice dedicated on July 19, 1903, practically free of debt.

It was in the spring of 1922 that Ellis Snyder, a son of the congregation, was ordained as a gospel minister in Trinity Lutheran Church and was called as an assistant pastor, which position he held in connection with a professorship in Capital university for a number of years. He did much to raise the standard of music in the congregation, as well as did he assist in distributing the Means of Grace.

In June, 1859, the Rev. C. Al-Troutman became pastor assistant to his father. He was a son of the congregation, having been born, baptized, confirmed, reared, ordained and installed in the congregation.

A commodious Parish house was erected in 1928, the old parsonage being razed to make room for this new structure. Much thought was given in the building of this parish house, owing to the varied uses to which it was to be put, housing the Sunday school, the various church societies in addition to its many other uses, serving as a very beneficial adjunct to the church.

The interior of the church edifice was beautified and the new pipe organ installed in 1930.

The parish now consists of approximately 1,100 communicant and 1,350 baptized members.

About Railroaders

While we were at the N. & W. station Saturday afternoon, and just looking things over to see if everything were going along right, the northbound local freight was switching around getting ready to move out. An engineer or fireman with a minute or two to spare was some football fan, too, and was listening in on the radio to hear O.S.U. getting sunk. Conductor Wizert was in charge and taking things patiently and good humoredly.

Met this Conductor Wizert down at Main street crossing a few days ago while he was directing traffic across the rails when the boys in his charge were doing some switching. Saw a nice little tag on his cap which contained the word "Conductor". Having heard people say a good many times that railroaders were tough plenty, we approached him with some caution and not too close, just for fear he might not want to be bothered by a youngster like us who wanted to know all about the conductor business.

Spoke to him in our mildest tone, asking how many years he had been railroading and if he liked it? Answered our question in friendly style by saying "34 years on this road." Then we wanted to know how many accidents he'd been into in all these long years. Told us that "right here at this crossing several years ago, a lady ran her auto bang up against our train while we were going over the crossing. It turned the machine completely upside down, and believe it or not, neither she nor the auto were damaged," he said.

Now we handed him a hot one. Wanted to know how old he was, 'cause his hair was getting the color of ours. He did not hesitate to tell us. Then we gave him another one, what did he do before he began railroading? And when he said "printer" and showed us how he used to kick the old job press, we then and there formed a partnership to go into the printing business. We're to do the bossing and he's to do the work.

Remarks were offered by Dr. Schneider, C. A. Leist, who traced the Leist family history; Charles L. Mack, member of the vestry for 18 years; E. C. Ebert, representing the choir; Mrs. Denny Pickens, of the Sunday school; the Rev. Harry Boyer, and Edward Sensenbrenner, who read the "Lutheran Bulletin," in which much philosophy was included.

A picture of the Rev. David Leist, first Lutheran minister in Pickaway county, was placed in a conspicuous place in the parish house entrance. The picture is the property of Mrs. John Black, of Kingston, a descendant.

The afternoon service, conducted by the younger pastors, the Rev. G. L. Troutman and the Rev. Mr. Boyer, was impressive.

The church's junior pastor termed an anniversary of the kind celebrated Sunday as "a golden cord binding together a certain number of days and years."

"It is a fine thing," he said, "to reach such a pinnacle as we have gained, but we can not afford to look backward too long because there is a great future in front of us."

He placed the success of the future on three factors: 1. God; 2. the pastors, instruments of God's Grace; 3. the members, who are the recipients of God's Grace.

"All three are needed," he declared, "and all three are inseparable.

"If either fails all future progress ceases."

Evade Politics, Events

The Rev. Mr. Troutman stressed the necessity for teaching the Word of God and evading political discussions and sermons on events of the day. "We are here to preach for Jesus Christ," the minister told his listeners, "and not just to discuss varied topics in order to interest people in an effort to fill our auditorium."

The Rev. Mr. Troutman paid high tribute to his father for his service which covers almost one-third of the church's entire history in Circleville.

The junior pastor closed by saying:

"We must remain faithful to our confirmation vows to glorify God. We must keep the Sabbath Day holy. Any person who is unfaithful to his vow retards the progress of his church."

The highlights of Sunday afternoon's music were the solo, "The Earth is the Lord's", offered by the Rev. Ellis Snyder, director of the department of voice at Capital university, Columbus, and a former junior pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, and the choir's selection, "Open Our Eyes" by MacFarlane, Mr. Snyder singing a short solo part in this anthem, and a solo, "Thanks Be to God", by Reilley, sung by Mrs. Avery Eichinger, of Columbus.

History Recalled

A brief resume of the church history as discussed by Mr. Hummel follows:

By John C. Hummel

It was in the early part of 1811, that the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Pennsylvania delegated, the Rev. Jacob Leist to organize Lutheran congregations in central Ohio.

This pioneer preacher conducted his first service in Circleville, Aug. 25, 1811. This was also, in all probability, the first public preaching service conducted in our city.

Among the heads of Lutheran families were the following: Jacob Zeiger, George Zimmer, Samuel Watt, Philip Zeiger, Jacob Zeiger, Jr., John Valentine, Peter Apple, Valentine Keffer, Peter Tres, Heinrich Tres, Wm. Moyer, Peter Herbster, Heinrich Ely, Father Try, Anthony Weaver, John Weaver, John Row, M. Earnhardt and others.

The early history of Pickaway county and of the city of Circleville records that many of these early members of Circleville's earliest Lutheran church were very active in civic and political affairs. There are no records preserved antedating the year 1831, although a congregation existed previous to this date.

In May, 1831, the Rev. A. B. Little was called as pastor. During his pastorate in the year 1832, the cornerstone for a church was laid; but the structure was not completed during his regime. Pastor Little resigned after having served the congregation two and one-half years.

On Feb. 23, 1834, the congregation extended a call to Rev. J. A. Roof. It was during his administration, after many difficulties and discouragements, that the church edifice was finally completed and dedicated in 1839. Father Roof served the Lutheran people of this community with the Word and Sacraments for 21 years conducting the services in both the German and English languages.

Two years after the resignation of the Rev. Mr. Roof, in 1857, Rev. Joel Schwartz of Virginia became the pastor. During his pastorate a sad division took place in the congregation. This division was occasioned by the pastor refusing to subscribe to certain articles of the Augsburg confession. The Rev. Mr. Schwarz succeeded in getting a following. Dissension arose in the congregation, and after much unpleasantness and several years' litigation, the party claiming to be the original congregation decided to cease lawing, and build a church as soon as practicable.

In June, 1859, the Rev. Mr. Albrecht accepted a call but remained only until April, 1860, when Rev. John Wagenhals became pastor. During his pastorate the congregation obtained, by order of the court from the "director of the town" a lot known as the "Presbyterian or Public burying ground" and built thereon a brick church and gave it the name of "Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church."

The corner stone of the church was laid in 1865 and the edifice dedicated in 1866.

Wagenhals Resigns

In 1868, the Rev. Wagenhals resigned his charge on account of failing health and advanced age, having served the church for eight years.

The responsibilities of the pastoral office then fell on Rev. M. B. Lenker, who entered on his duties in 1868. Unfortunately contention arose in the congregation on account of synodical differences, and a number of families withdrew. The Rev. Mr. Lenker found it necessary to resign.

After this the church was closed for a time, and conditions were rather discouraging, when on Feb. 13, 1871, Rev. E. L. S. Tressel was chosen as spiritual leader. Under his influence and management, the church took on new life, but Rev. Tressel's stay was brief. He followed a call to Baltimore, Maryland, in 1874.

Rev. A. H. Schulze was the next minister to serve the charge. His regime began in October, 1874. His failing health made it difficult for him to comply with the demands of the people, yet he sought to fulfil his arduous duties faithfully and conscientiously until 1879.

The Rev. Mr. Schulze was followed by the Rev. A. Pflueger, who entered on his duties in 1879 and supplied the brethren with spiritual food until the end of 1881.

It was early in the year 1882 that Rev. J. H. Schneider became pastor, and his period of service lasted for 12 years. It was during his pastorate that the interior of the church was beautified, the pipe organ installed, a church school established and a school house built. This church school was operated and maintained under difficulties, but in the main was a great blessing to the congregation.

In 1894, S. W. Mautz, then a student in our Theological Seminary, was called to administer the Means of Grace. In 1895, teacher G. C. Schaub resigned his position in order to enter Capital university and prepare for the ministry. His resignation was accepted. The congregation called eight teachers, and the call was eight times declined. Unfortunately the school was discontinued. The Rev. Mr. Mautz served the congregation until April, 1898.

Rev. Troutman in 1898

In May of the same year, Rev. George J. Troutman, of Pennsylvania, received and accepted a call extended by the Circleville Parish, entering upon the discharge of his duties in August, 1898. In May, 1901, the congregation decided to build a new church, as soon as the necessary funds could be raised. The committee appointed to solicit funds reported favorably. The last service in the old church was conducted on February 9, 1902. At this service the Lord's Supper was celebrated, and a large number communed, possibly more than at any one time so far in the history of the church.

The cornerstone of the now existing church, was laid on July 20, 1902 and the edifice dedicated on July 19, 1903, practically free of debt.

It was in the spring of 1922 that Ellis Snyder, a son of the congregation, was ordained as a gospel minister in Trinity Lutheran Church and was called as an assistant pastor, which position he held in connection with a professorship in Capital university for a number of years. He did much to raise the standard of music in the congregation, as well as did he assist in distributing the Means of Grace.

In June, 1859, the Rev. C. Al- Troutman became pastor assistant to his father. He was a son of the congregation, having been born, baptized, confirmed, reared, ordained and installed in the congregation.

A commodious Parish house was erected in 1928, the old parsonage being razed to make room for this new structure. Much thought was given in the building of this parish house, owing to the varied uses to which it was to be put, housing the Sunday school, the various church societies in addition to its many other uses, serving as a very beneficial adjunct to the church.

The interior of the church edifice was beautified and the new pipe organ installed in 1930.

The parish now consists of approximately 1,100 communicant and 1,350 baptized members.

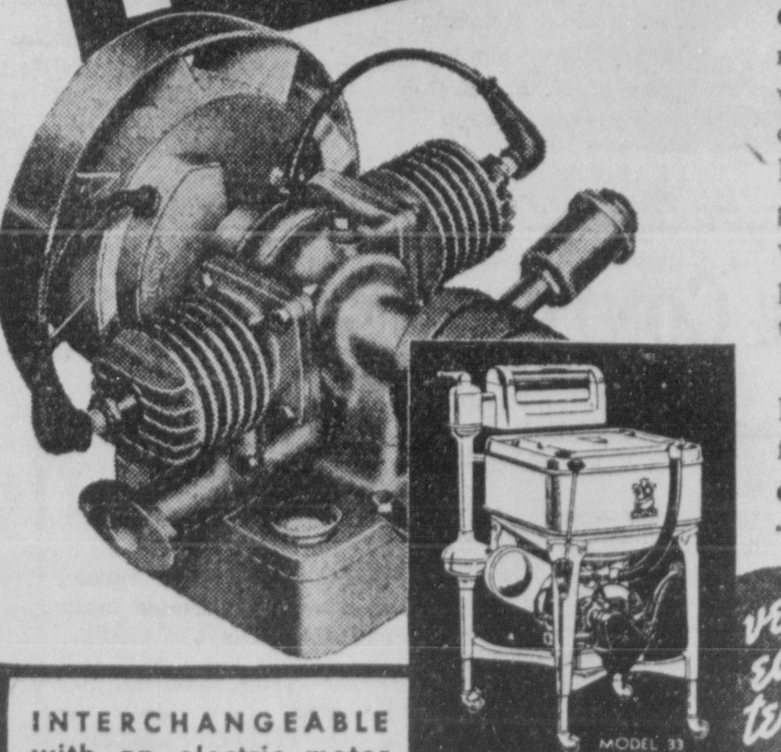
NEW ...and it's a MAYTAG



● Farm homes without electricity may now have the world's finest washer with a new type of power—the twin-cylinder Maytag gasoline Multi-Motor. The Maytag single-cylinder gasoline Multi-Motor was the first washer engine ever built, and has placed the Maytag washer on more than a million farms.

The new twin-cylinder Multi-Motor has all the qualities of the former engine plus—

● Smoother, steadier, quieter operation—vibration is practically eliminated. ● Only six working parts. ● Built by Maytag for washer power, and for a woman to operate. ● Starts easier and uses less fuel—does a big farm washing on one quart of gasoline.

About Railroaders

While we were at the N. & W. station Saturday afternoon, and just looking things over to see if everything were going along right, the northbound local freight was switching around getting ready to move out. An engineer or fireman with a minute or two to spare was some football fan, too, and was listening in on the radio to hear O.S.U. getting sunk. Conductor Wizert was in charge and taking things patiently and good humoredly.

Met this Conductor Wizert down at Main street crossing a few days ago while he was directing traffic across the rails when the boys in his charge were doing some switching. Saw a nice little tag on his cap which contained the word "Conductor". Having heard people say a good many times that railroaders were tough plenty, we approached him with some caution and not too close, just for fear he might not want to be bothered by a youngster like us who wanted to know all about the conductor business.

Spoke to him in our mildest tone, asking how many years he had been railroading and if he liked it? Answered our question in friendly style by saying "34 years on this road." Then we wanted to know how many accidents he'd been into in all these long years. Told us that "right here at this crossing several years ago, a lady ran her auto bang up against our train while we were going over the crossing. It turned the machine completely upside down, and believe it or not, neither she nor the auto were damaged," he said.

Now we handed him a hot one. Wanted to know how old he was, 'cause his hair was getting the color of ours. He did not hesitate to tell us. Then we gave him another one, what did he do before he began railroading? And when he said "printer" and showed us how he used to kick the old job press, we then and there formed a partnership to go into the printing business. We're to do the bossing and he's to do the work.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

CHANCE FOR LITERATURE

SINCE so many first-rate English writers have been dying off, write Sinclair Lewis in the News Week, our own authors have a wonderful chance.

"Relieved of the inferiority complex, the American writer ought to perceive that he has—not necessarily excepting China and Russia—the most exciting country in the world: the greatest divergence of races, from Icelanders to Japanese and Negroes; the widest sweep of climates. He is not confined to a vicar's garden. The United States is not a country but a continent, yet it reads one language instead of a hundred, so that our authors may address, on both sides of our border, a hundred and forty million souls."

With this great opportunity, he laments, not more than a dozen or two of our writers are composing anything more stimulating than "Boy Meets Girl" tales for the magazines.

For this he is inclined to blame the public itself. "So long as we find it easier to turn a steering wheel than to turn a page, the cub writers cannot be vastly blamed if they go off to Hollywood and leave the opportunity to sing American glory just for one more noble fizzle."

RULES FOR AVOIDING COLDS

WITH the annual high point in the number of common colds occurring regularly in the late Fall season, a leading physician offers ten rules that will help men, women and children avoid this widespread malady. They are:

1. Get plenty of sleep, fresh air and sunshine.
2. Eat all the nourishing food you need, but avoid overeating.
3. Dress sensibly and with regard to the climate.
4. If you get wet, change to dry clothing as soon as possible.
5. Breathe through your nose, not your mouth.
6. "Cleanliness is next to godliness," Bathe daily.
7. Avoid constipation.
8. Get outdoor exercise every day. Long walks are excellent.
9. Avoid sudden changes of temperature.
10. Keep away from people who have colds.

"It goes without saying, he adds, "that those with colds much use handkerchiefs when sneezing, coughing or expectorating, to avoid infecting others.

"Overeating lowers resistance, making the individual more susceptible to colds.

If you have difficulty in breathing properly, see your doctor promptly; your tonsils, adenoids, sinuses or teeth may need attention. Don't go from a hot room into the cold without suitable protection and never cool off by sitting in a draft or directly in front of an electric fan. Finally, if there is an epidemic of colds in your vicinity, avoid large, crowded meetings; in the home, quarantine cold sufferers, particularly if there are children or old people around. The infection of children and aged people is the cause of excess mortality in these groups."

TIRE INDUSTRY FIRST TARGET

WASHINGTON — The tire industry has been secretly selected by the Justice Department as the first target in the drive against price-fixing which has been personally ordered by the President.

Prosecutions shortly will be launched against fourteen manufacturers who submitted identical bids to the Treasury. If present plans go through, these suits will be followed by another flock against a group of big newsprint producers.

Basis of the action against the tiremakers is evidence obtained by a wily stratagem of Robert Jackson, head of the Justice Department's Anti-Trust Division, and Herman Oliphant, chief counsel of the Treasury. The latter Department called for bids on a large order of tires and tubes. Fourteen were received, every one identical down to the last fraction of a cent.

Jackson advised Oliphant to reject the bids on the ground of "evidence of collusion" and to ask for a new set.

"We've got these firms over a barrel," Jackson said. "Whatever they do they are in hot water. If they submit identical bids again it will be a confirmation of their collusion. If they don't it will be a confession that they got together the first time and are scared."

Oliphant followed Jackson's suggestion and new bids were called for. Again they were identical down to the last decimal point. Jackson immediately started preparations for court action.

BLACK ON PAYROLL

The Democratic National Committee recently filed an itemized account of its expenses showing that on March 16 of this year it paid $51.30 for railroad fare for Hugo Black for a trip to Detroit. Again, on March 29, the Committee paid $46.75 for a trip by Black to Cleveland and return.

Black was propagandizing for the Administration on the reform of the Supreme Court, to which later he was appointed.

The new Justice was a relatively modest spender, however. On his Detroit trip he spent only $12 for food, hotel bills, etc., whereas Senator Tom Connally of Texas, who bitterly opposed the President's Court plan, spent $78.92 for "taxis, tips, and miscellaneous expenses." These were incurred during the campaign last year but Connally failed to collect until recently.

Science Works on High Blood Pressure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MEDICAL SCIENCE still is working, without very much evidence of success, on the question of the cause and treatment of high blood pressure. It would be very easy to be convinced of the nature of high blood pressure if one were not particularly critical of proof. Or, in other words, if one does not know the nature of evidence.

Dr. Clendening

I have before me the report of an English investigator, Dr. I. Harris, in a book intended for the public, in which he says, "During a research under my direction in the problem of high blood pressure, we were able to establish that a certain food (protein) eaten in excess raises the blood pressure. We also found that the body wears itself out prematurely owing to an intake of food which is not needed and which has to be got rid of." Careful search through the volume fails to afford any proof that these statements can be substantiated.

There is no doubt that for a great many people it holds true that they eat too much after the age of 45, but it has still to be proved that this actually causes high blood pressure, and if anything has happened to the doctrine that protein causes high blood pressure, it is that the theory has been disproved rather than proved.

Statements to the effect that protein is responsible for chronic disease are liable to do more harm than good, because a great many people need protein food. In Germany during the war a diet deficient in protein led to certain diseases, although in this instance not only was the protein insufficient, but also the general food supply.

Takes Different Viewpoint

A recent review of the subject of high blood pressure by one of the deans of American medicine, takes an entirely different viewpoint. In regard to the cause, he says that in certain cases we can determine the cause, but usually high blood pressure is a condition that stands alone. He refuses to discuss the theories advanced in explanation of high blood pressure "because I should have to say after each one 'not proven.'"

The fact that high blood pressure is uncommon among the Chinese has always seemed to call for some explanation. Gunewardene examined 200 Buddhist priests, ranging in age from 30 to 80 years, and found only one instance of high blood pressure. It has often been suggested that this is due to the Chinese and the Buddhist outlook on life. To the Buddhist, the restlessness, the consuming ambition of the western business man are unknown and incomprehensible; he is never in a hurry, never runs, not even, as Gunewardene says, if his robes catch on fire.

It has also been suggested that among the Chinese the widespread use of watermelon seeds, which contain a substance that depresses blood pressure, may be a factor in the universal low blood pressure among Chinese people.

Another, and it seems to me, far more likely explanation, is simply that it is hereditary. We certainly know that high and low blood pressure are both hereditary, and to find them in one race would seem to indicate more a hereditary factor than any other kind.

DEAD RECKONING

By BRUCE HAMILTON

COPYRIGHT BY BRUCE HAMILTON; RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER 48

PRESENTLY an elderly woman came into the solicitor's office, and after a word with the clerk, joined Tim on the bench. She soon began fretting and showing signs of impatience.

At 10 past 10 a heavily built man with a black mustache burst in as if he had heard there was a fire, barked out to the lady on the bench, "'Morning, Miss Jupp, won't keep you a moment," shot a swift glance at Tim, and vanished into a private office. In a few minutes the clerk called the elderly lady away, and for 40 minutes nothing further happened. Tim smoked three more cigarets, making a mess of the floor; there were no ash trays.

But the lady came out at last, and a little later the clerk approached Tim. "Mr. Kay will see you now, sir," he said, and led Tim through.

Mr. Kay had Adams' note in his hand. "You're Mr. T. J. Kennedy, I take it," he said briskly. He put Tim into a chair and gave him a cigaret. As he held his pocket lighter to it, he gave him a rather curious glance.

"You a friend of Mr. Adams?" he said.

"I'm his employer," Tim replied.

"Oh. . . . Has he been in your service a long time?"

"About 15 years."

"Good servant?"

"Excellent." Tim stirred uneasily. "I needn't keep you, Mr. Kay. . . . It's only a question of this letter. I told him I was coming to London today, and he asked me to collect it."

"So I see. . . . You don't happen to know what's in it?"

"I haven't the slightest idea."

"Nor have I. . . . Reason I asked, he made such a fuss about it the other day, I was surprised he wanted it again so soon. We don't know much about him; haven't seen him since that case seven years ago or so. . . . I suppose you know all about that?"

Tim hedged. "I don't know the details. . . . I know he got into trouble, but I didn't care to press him about it. . . . He saved my life in the war, you know."

"That explains things. . . . It was larceny, actually. We got him off, but he was damned lucky."

Tim did recall an occasion when Adams, who had been on holiday, wrote from London asking for an extension of leave of absence. There had been an excuse about a dying relative, and Adams had returned in a chastened mood which Tim had attributed to grief. According to his custom, he had asked no questions.

"I shouldn't be telling you about this," said Mr. Kay, "and I'm sure you'll regard it as confidential. But to tell the truth I haven't been happy about this secret-document-to-be-opened-after-my-death film stuff. 'Specially with a man whose record was doubtful. Smells of monkey business. It was my partner, Mr. Major, who saw him this time—I wouldn't have handled it without an explanation. However, I'll be glad to let you have it."

He rang a bell, and the young Jew came in. "Just rout out that Adams envelope and bring it to me, Davis," said Mr. Kay.

"I think Mr. Major's got it, sir," said Davis.

"Mr. Major arrived?"

"Just come, sir."

"Well, ask him. . . . Here, give him this note."

There was a pause. Mr. Kay drummed on the desk with his fingers. "Hope you'll forget what I mentioned just now," he said abruptly. "I've really no reason to believe Adams isn't running straight. You ought to know better than I. But I wouldn't like to have anything I've said prejudice you against him."

"Of course not," Tim answered. "I know Adams isn't all he should be, but so long as he's under my eye I know he's all right."

There was another silence. It was broken by the entry of a bald, elderly man in a state of some excitement.

He went up to Mr. Kay, and said a few words to him in a low voice.

"Good heavens!" said Mr. Kay. He turned to Tim. "Adams is dead."

"Dead?" echoed Tim, fighting for control.

It was Mr. Major who answered. He held out a newspaper to Tim, and pointed to a paragraph. "That's him, isn't it?"

It was only two lines, under the caption "Darts Player Killed" . . . M. Adams . . . cycle accident . . . West Shilston.

"Good Lord!" Tim struggled. "I'd no idea. . . . But that's not my servant Adams; it must be his brother. His brother lived in West Shilston too.

"Same initial?"

"Yes . . . Martin. My man is Merivale. He's all right, he gave me that note this morning.

"You saw him this morning, and he said nothing about his brother's death?"

"No, not a word. You know I think I see. This letter he gave you, it must be something to do with his brother. . . . Something he wanted to hush up. . . . However, it's not my business, I'm only the messenger. I'd be glad if you'd let me have it now. I've an appointment at half past 11."

"Just a minute, Mr. Kennedy." It was Mr. Major who spoke. "I've no doubt it's all right, but you'll admit the circumstances are rather unusual. I have the letter here, but I think you'll agree we ought to find out a little more before we hand over."

"But I promised Adams. He was very urgent. I wouldn't care to go back to him without it."

Mr. Kay answered. "I'm afraid you must."

"But I insist! I've given you a clear authority to hand over this letter to me."

Mr. Kay shook his head. "To put it bluntly, Mr. Kennedy, your conduct is rather suspicious. I understand you came here at half past 9, and you've waited till well after 11. All to carry out a commission for your servant. It doesn't sound natural, and it doesn't sound natural your being so importunate now, if you don't know more than you've told me. Remember this envelope is marked 'To be opened after my death.' Well, a man of the name of M. Adams, of West Shilston, has died. You tell me it must be his brother. But we'll have to check up on it. If it's in order we'll hand over all right."

"You won't give me the letter now?"

"No."

Tim licked his lips. "Listen," he said. "I was lying to you. I see I must tell you the truth. It's my Adams who is dead all right. And I know what's in the envelope. It's a letter written to me 10 years ago, and it's rather a giveaway. What is called a 'moral offense'. Adams got hold of it, and he's been blackmailing me ever since.

"I'm a professional man in West Shilston, a dentist. If I lost my reputation it means I lose my livelihood. I had to pay, go on paying. But lately I decided it had got to stop. I raised a sum, a decent sum . . . and Adams said he would turn over the letter to me for it. We concluded the bargain yesterday . . . and he gave me that note.

"Then . . . the bloody fool has to go and get drunk, to celebrate, I suppose. And he was riding home last night . . . and broke his neck. You see what a position it puts me in. . . ."

Tim turned his ghastly sweating face toward the two solicitors. Both were watching him attentively, but nothing could be gleaned from their expressions.

"Blackmail. . . . You understand? These things are best hushed up. You've no motive in ruining me. . . ."

Mr. Major spoke gently. "Your secret, whatever it is, will be perfectly safe with us, Mr. Kennedy, I don't suppose it's criminal."

"Then you'll give me the envelope?"

"I'm afraid we can't do that."

"I'll give you £500 for it."

The solicitors exchanged glances.

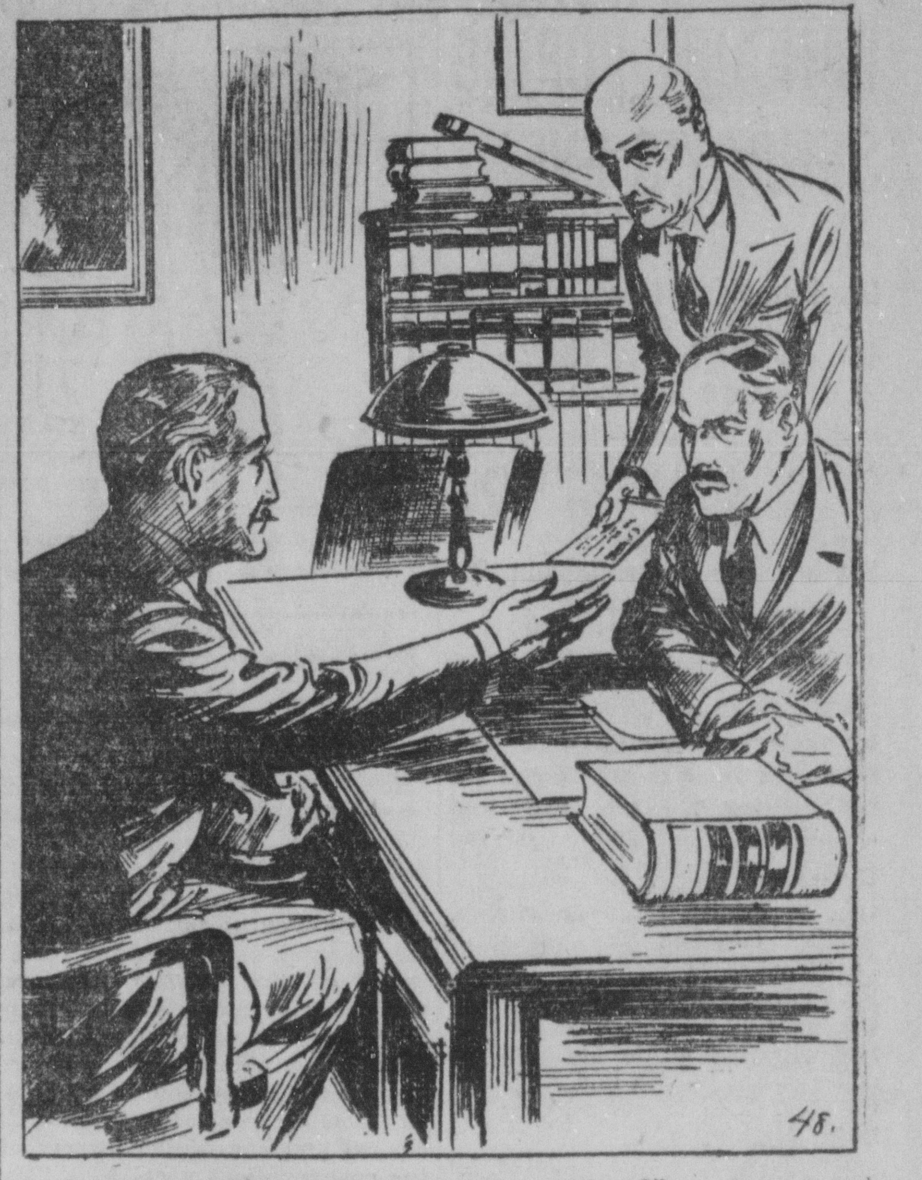
Mr. Kay spoke. His eyes never left Tim's. "I think, old man, under the circumstances . . ."

Tim tried to rise, but he could not move from his chair.

Mr. Major nodded. "Yes, I think we'd better."

He slit open the envelope.

(THE END)



"Then you'll give me the envelope?"

How to Wash Quilt

Down quilts are worth more than their weight in warmth. They are light enough to throw over the bed on chilly summer nights, and warm enough to do heavy service throughout the coldest winter.

If you have used your down quilt all summer, it doubtless needs washing before it is launched into the winter season. Immerse it in mild soapsuds which have been reduced to a lukewarm temperature, and press the suds through the fabric. Do not twist or squeeze.

Use a second lather or suds and a third if necessary. There's no economy in stinting on the soap supply. To restore the soft puffiness of the filling every bit of ingrained soil must be removed. Rinse thoroughly in lukewarm water and press out the excess moisture before hanging the quilt to dry.

Spread it between two lines if possible to avoid having it drag along the ground. To redistribute the filling evenly, turn it several times while drying, and when it is dry work it between the fingers. Press lightly with a warm iron and you are ready for the very cold weather.

World At A Glance

—By— Charles P. Stewart

Third party talk is increasingly heard on Capitol Hill, with the reassembling of politicians for the extra congressional session.

The necessity for a party realignment has long been under discussion.

A realignment, however, need call only party memberships, presumably under their present names, but in such fashion as to classify one group as liberals, the other as conservatives; not mixed up on both sides, as they are today.

The organization of a third party is a different proposition.

* * *

REALIGNMENT DIFFICULT

A realignment of Republicans and Democrats, while easy enough to suggest probably would be mightily difficult to accomplish.

Republicans, on an average, are not quite so thoroughly dyed-in-the-wool as Democrats. Generally speaking, a Republican, if angry enough at G. O. P. managerial policies, will bolt his party. We have seen traditionally Republican states flop bodily in recent years. Still, there are many Republicans who never will admit that they have become Democrats.

Few Democrats, especially in the south, will make the admission that they have turned Republican. They stick to the Democratic label, no matter how anti-New Deal they may be.

* * *

NEW PARTY EASIER?

Now, might not these anti-New-Deal Democrats, while forever anti-Republican also, be willing to ally themselves with a new party, unbranded with "DamYankeeism"?

And might it not be less painful for a rockbound Republican to join a new party than to confess that he has turned Democratic?

Third-party-ites, asking these questions, incline to answer affirmatively.

Besides, they argue, a lot of good Republicans, who hate the New Deal, nevertheless are just as bitter against the G. O. P. old guard—Representative Hamilton Fish, for example. Contrariwise, some very liberal Democrats (Senator Burton K. Wheeler, for instance), who never could become Republicans, are anti-New Deal . .

Might not a third party catch them?

INCREASING TALK

There was a bit of this chat at the last regular congressional session. It did not amount to much then. This fall there is a considerable volume of it. The lawmakers have been home in the meantime and such seems to be their reaction. It is not violent but it is noticeable.

Most of it comes from the middle northwest.

It is a farmer movement, which seeks for eastern labor sympathy.

Senator Wheeler, as we recall, once ran for the vice presidency on a third party ticket. Representative William Lemke of North Dakota ran as a third party presidential candidate in the last national campaign. They did not make much of a dent, but "hope springs eternal".

* * *

BALLOT DIFFICULTY

The weakness of a third party candidate is that, in many states, the electoral machinery makes it impossible for him even to get his name on the official ballots. It has to be written in by the individual voter. Naturally not many voters will take as much trouble as that.

Yet, who can tell?—in the event of a landslide?

Naturally, no rational person looks for so great a landslide in 1940. The glance is ahead to 1944, if ever.

* * *

CAUSES SOME WORRY

Regular party managers do worry a trifle as to third party movements.

True, they do not believe that a third party ever can win, but there always is the risk that it will get a large enough vote to prevent any ticket from having a majority (as distinguished from a plurality) in the presidential electoral college.

In which event the selection would be thrown into the house of representatives.

Think what a fight that would involve!

CHANCE FOR LITERATURE

SINCE so many first-rate English writers have been dying off, write Sinclair Lewis in the News Week, our own authors have a wonderful chance.

"Relieved of the inferiority complex, the American writer ought to perceive that he has—not necessarily excepting China and Russia—the most exciting country in the world: the greatest divergence of races, from Icelanders to Japanese and Negroes; the widest sweep of climates. He is not confined to a vicar's garden. The United States is not a country but a continent, yet it reads one language instead of a hundred, so that our authors may address, on both sides of our border, a hundred and forty million souls."

With this great opportunity, he laments, not more than a dozen or two of our writers are composing anything more stimulating than "Boy Meets Girl" tales for the magazines.

For this he is inclined to blame the public itself. "So long as we find it easier to turn a steering wheel than to turn a page, the cub writers cannot be vastly blamed if they go off to Hollywood and leave the opportunity to sing American glory just for one more noble fizzle."

RULES FOR AVOIDING COLDS

WITH the annual high point in the number of common colds occurring regularly in the late Fall season, a leading physician offers ten rules that will help men, women and children avoid this widespread malady. They are:

1. Get plenty of sleep, fresh air and sunshine.
2. Eat all the nourishing food you need, but avoid overeating.
3. Dress sensibly and with regard to the climate.
4. If you get wet, change to dry clothing as soon as possible.
5. Breathe through your nose, not your mouth.
6. "Cleanliness is next to godliness," Bathe daily.
7. Avoid constipation.
8. Get outdoor exercise every day. Long walks are excellent.
9. Avoid sudden changes of temperature.
10. Keep away from people who have colds.

"It goes without saying, he adds, "that those with colds much use handkerchiefs when sneezing, coughing or expectorating, to avoid infecting others.

"Overeating lowers resistance, making the individual more susceptible to colds. If you have difficulty in breathing properly, see your doctor promptly; your tonsils, adenoids, sinuses or teeth may need attention. Don't go from a hot room into the cold without suitable protection and never cool off by sitting in a draft or directly in front of an electric fan. Finally, if there is an epidemic of colds in your vicinity, avoid large, crowded meetings; in the home, quarantine cold sufferers, particularly if there are children or old people around. The infection of children and aged people is the cause of excess mortality in these groups."

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

TIRE INDUSTRY FIRST TARGET

WASHINGTON — The tire industry has been secretly selected by the Justice Department as the first target in the drive against price-fixing which has been personally ordered by the President.

Prosecutions shortly will be launched against fourteen manufacturers who submitted identical bids to the Treasury. If present plans go through, these suits will be followed by another flock against a group of big newsprint producers.

Basis of the action against the tiremakers is evidence obtained by a wily stratagem of Robert Jackson, head of the Justice Department's Anti-Trust Division, and Herman Oliphant, chief counsel of the Treasury. The latter Department called for bids on a large order of tires and tubes. Fourteen were received, every one identical down to the last fraction of a cent.

Jackson advised Oliphant to reject the bids on the ground of "evidence of collusion" and to ask for a new set.

"We've got these firms over a barrel," Jackson said. "Whatever they do they are in hot water. If they submit identical bids again it will be a confirmation of their collusion. If they don't it will be a confession that they got together the first time and are scared."

Oliphant followed Jackson's suggestion and new bids were called for. Again they were identical down to the last decimal point. Jackson immediately started preparations for court action.

BLACK ON PAYROLL

The Democratic National Committee recently filed an itemized account of its expenses showing that on March 16 of this year it paid $51.30 for railroad fare for Hugo Black for a trip to Detroit. Again, on March 29, the Committee paid $46.75 for a trip by Black to Cleveland and return.

Black was propagandizing for the Administration on the reform of the Supreme Court, to which later he was appointed.

The new Justice was a relatively modest spender, however. On his Detroit trip he spent only $12 for food, hotel bills, etc., whereas Senator Tom Connally of Texas, who bitterly opposed the President's Court plan, spent $78.92 for "taxis, tips, and miscellaneous expenses." These were incurred during the campaign last year but Connally failed to collect until recently.

DIET AND HEALTH

Science Works on High Blood Pressure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MEDICAL SCIENCE still is working, without very much evidence of success, on the question of the cause and treatment of high blood pressure. It would be very easy to be convinced of the nature of high blood pressure if one were not particularly critical of proof. Or, in other words, if one does not know the nature of evidence.

Dr. Clendening

I have before me the report of an English investigator, Dr. I. Harris, in a book intended for the public, in which he says, "During a research under my direction in the problem of high blood pressure, we were able to establish that a certain food (protein) eaten in excess raises the blood pressure. We also found that the body wears itself out prematurely owing to an intake of food which is not needed and which has to be got rid of." Careful search through the volume fails to afford any proof that these statements can be substantiated.

There is no doubt that for a great many people it holds true that they eat too much after the age of 45, but it has still to be proved that this actually causes high blood pressure, and if anything has happened to the doctrine that protein causes high blood pressure, it is that the theory has been disproved rather than proved.

Statements to the effect that protein is responsible for chronic disease are liable to do more harm than good, because a great many people need protein food. In Germany during the war a diet deficient in protein led to certain diseases, although in this instance not only was the protein insufficient, but also the general food supply.

Takes Different Viewpoint

A recent review of the subject of high blood pressure by one of the deans of American medicine, takes an entirely different viewpoint. In regard to the cause, he says that in certain cases we can determine the cause, but usually high blood pressure is a condition that stands alone. He refuses to discuss the theories advanced in explanation of high blood pressure "because I should have to say after each one 'not proven.'"

The fact that high blood pressure is uncommon among the Chinese has always seemed to call for some explanation. Gunewardene examined 200 Buddhist priests, ranging in age from 30 to 80 years, and found only one instance of high blood pressure. It has often been suggested that this is due to the Chinese and the Buddhist outlook on life. To the Buddhist, the restlessness, the consuming ambition of the western business man are unknown and incomprehensible; he is never in a hurry, never runs, not even, as Gunewardene says, if his robes catch on fire.

It has also been suggested that among the Chinese the widespread use of watermelon seeds, which contain a substance that depresses blood pressure, may be a factor in the universal low blood pressure among Chinese people.

Another, and it seems to me, far more likely explanation, is simply that it is hereditary. We certainly know that high and low blood pressure are both hereditary, and to find them in one race would seem to indicate more a hereditary factor than any other kind.

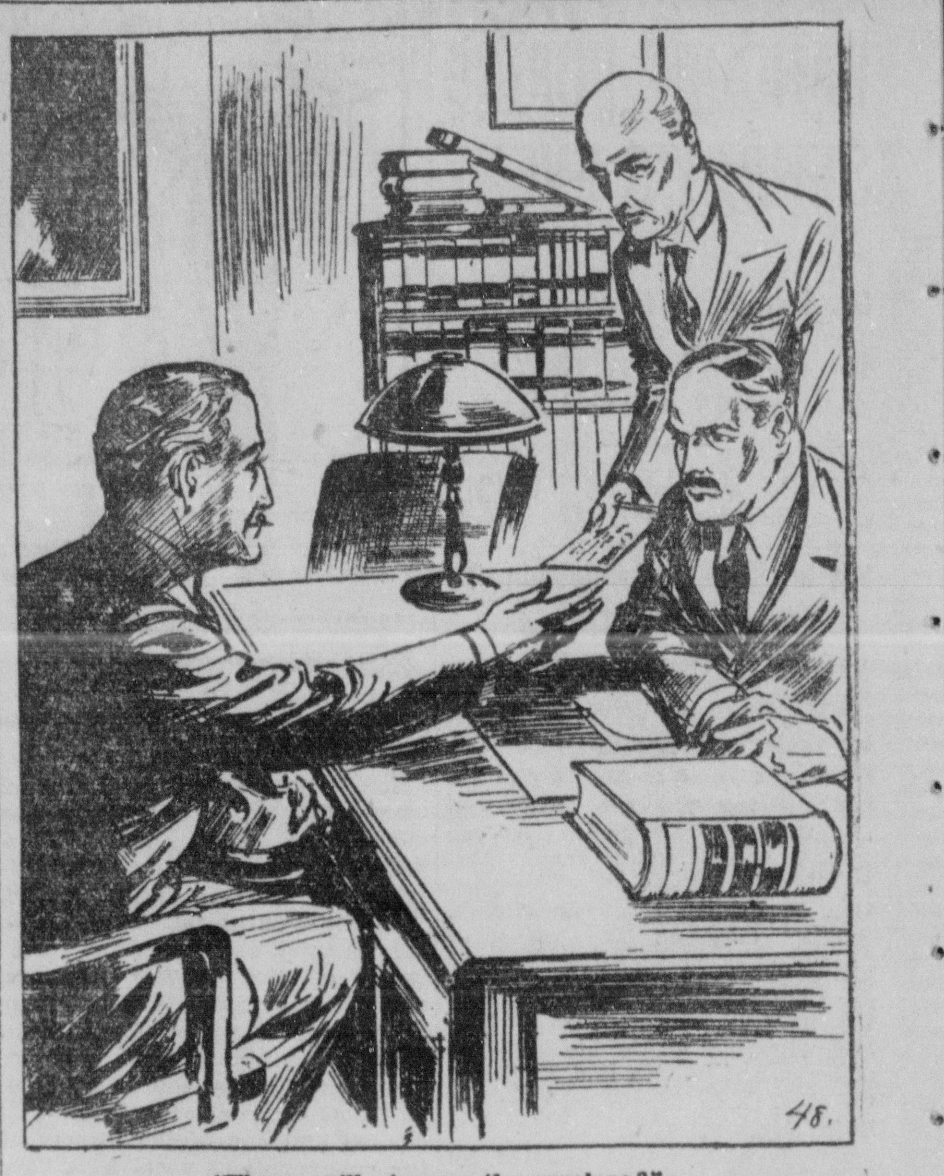
DEAD RECKONING

My Brother — Thou shalt not Kill

By BRUCE HAMILTON

COPYRIGHT BY BRUCE HAMILTON; RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION



"Then you'll give me the envelope?"

CHAPTER 48

PRESENTLY an elderly woman came into the solicitor's office, and after a word with the clerk, joined Tim on the bench. She soon began fretting and showing signs of impatience.

At 10 past 10 a heavily built man with a black mustache burst in as if he had heard there was a fire, barked out to the lady on the bench, "'Morning, Miss Jupp, won't keep you a moment," shot a swift glance at Tim, and vanished into a private office. In a few minutes the clerk called the elderly lady away, and for 40 minutes nothing further happened. Tim smoked three more cigarets, making a mess of the floor; there were no ash trays.

But the lady came out at last, and a little later the clerk approached Tim. "Mr. Kay will see you now, sir," he said, and led Tim through.

Mr. Kay had Adams' note in his hand. "You're Mr. T. J. Kennedy, I take it," he said briskly. He put Tim into a chair and gave him a cigaret. As he held his pocket lighter to it, he gave him a rather curious glance.

"You a friend of Mr. Adams?" he said.

"I'm his employer," Tim replied.

"Oh. . . . Has he been in your service a long time?"

"About 15 years."

"Good servant?"

"Excellent." Tim stirred uneasily. "I needn't keep you, Mr. Kay. . . . It's only a question of this letter. I told him I was coming to London today, and he asked me to collect it."

"So I see. . . . You don't happen to know what's in it?"

"I haven't the slightest idea."

"Nor have I. . . . Reason I asked, he made such a fuss about it the other day, I was surprised he wanted it again so soon. We don't know much about him; haven't seen him since that case seven years ago or so. . . . I suppose you know all about that?"

Tim hedged. "I don't know the details. . . . I know he got into trouble, but I didn't care to press him about it. . . . He saved my life in the war, you know."

"That explains things. . . . It was larceny, actually. We got him off, but he was damned lucky."

Tim did recall an occasion when Adams, who had been on holiday, wrote from London asking for an extension of leave of absence. There had been an excuse about a dying relative, and Adams had returned in a chastened mood which Tim had attributed to grief. According to his custom, he had asked no questions.

"I shouldn't be telling you about this," said Mr. Kay, "and I'm sure you'll regard it as confidential. But to tell the truth I haven't been happy about this secret-document-to-be-opened-after-my-death film stuff. 'Specially with a man whose record was doubtful. Smells of monkey business. It was my partner, Mr. Major, who saw him this time—I wouldn't have handled it without an explanation. However, I'll be glad to let you have it."

He rang a bell, and the young Jew came in. "Just rout out that Adams envelope and bring it to me, Davis," said Mr. Kay.

"I think Mr. Major's got it, sir," said Davis.

"Mr. Major arrived?"

"Just come, sir."

"Well, ask him. . . . Here, give him this note."

There was a pause. Mr. Kay drummed on the desk with his fingers. "Hope you'll forget what I mentioned just now," he said abruptly. "I've really no reason to believe Adams isn't running straight. You ought to know better than I. But I wouldn't like to have anything I've said prejudice you against him."

"Of course not," Tim answered. "I know Adams isn't all he should be, but so long as he's under my eye I know he's all right."

There was another silence. It was broken by the entry of a bald, elderly man in a state of some excitement.

He went up to Mr. Kay, and said a few words to him in a low voice.

"Good heavens!" said Mr. Kay. He turned to Tim. "Adams is dead."

"Dead?" echoed Tim, fighting for control.

It was Mr. Major who answered. He held out a newspaper to Tim, and pointed to a paragraph. "That's him, isn't it?"

It was only two lines, under the caption "Darts Player Killed" . . . M. Adams . . . cycle accident . . . West Shilston.

"Good Lord!" Tim struggled. "I'd no idea. . . . But that's not my servant Adams; it must be his brother. His brother lived in West Shilston too.

"Same initial?"

"Yes . . . Martin. My man is Merivale. He's all right, he gave me that note this morning.

"You saw him this morning, and he said nothing about his brother's death?"

"No, not a word. You know I think I see. This letter he gave you, it must be something to do with his brother. . . . Something he wanted to hush up. . . . However, it's not my business, I'm only the messenger. I'd be glad if you'd let me have it now. I've an appointment at half past 11."

"Just a minute, Mr. Kennedy." It was Mr. Major who spoke. "I've no doubt it's all right, but you'll admit the circumstances are rather unusual. I have the letter here, but I think you'll agree we ought to find out a little more before we hand over."

"But I promised Adams. He was very urgent. I wouldn't care to go back to him without it."

Mr. Kay answered. "I'm afraid you must."

"But I insist! I've given you a clear authority to hand over this letter to me."

Mr. Kay shook his head. "To put it bluntly, Mr. Kennedy, your conduct is rather suspicious. I understand you came here at half past 9, and you've waited till well after 11. All to carry out a commission for your servant. It doesn't sound natural, and it doesn't sound natural your being so importunate now, if you don't know more than you've told me. Remember this envelope is marked 'To be opened after my death.' Well, a man of the name of M. Adams, of West Shilston, has died. You tell me it must be his brother. But we'll have to check up on it. If it's in order we'll hand over all right."

"You won't give me the letter now?"

"No."

Tim licked his lips. "Listen," he said. "I was lying to you. I see I must tell you the truth. It's my Adams who is dead all right. And I know what's in the envelope. It's a letter written to me 10 years ago, and it's rather a giveaway. What is called a 'moral offense'. Adams got hold of it, and he's been blackmailing me ever since.

"I'm a professional man in West Shilston, a dentist. If I lost my reputation it means I lose my livelihood. I had to pay, go on paying. But lately I decided it had got to stop. I raised a sum, a decent sum . . . and Adams said he would turn over the letter to me for it. We concluded the bargain yesterday . . . and he gave me that note.

"Then . . . the bloody fool has to go and get drunk, to celebrate, I suppose. And he was riding home last night . . . and broke his neck. You see what a position it puts me in. . . ."

Tim turned his ghastly sweating face toward the two solicitors. Both were watching him attentively, but nothing could be gleaned from their expressions.

"Blackmail. . . . You understand? These things are best hushed up. You've no motive in ruining me. . . ."

Mr. Major spoke gently. "Your secret, whatever it is, will be perfectly safe with us, Mr. Kennedy. I don't suppose it's criminal."

"Then you'll give me the envelope?"

"I'm afraid we can't do that."

"I'll give you £500 for it."

The solicitors exchanged glances.

Mr. Kay spoke. His eyes never left Tim's. "I think, old man, under the circumstances . . ."

Tim tried to rise, but he could not move from his chair.

Mr. Major nodded. "Yes, I think we'd better."

He slit open the envelope.

How to Wash Quilt

Down quilts are worth more than their weight in warmth. They are light enough to throw over the bed on chilly summer nights, and warm enough to do heavy service throughout the coldest winter.

If you have used your down quilt all summer, it doubtless needs washing before it is launched into the winter season. Immerse it in mild soapsuds which have been reduced to a lukewarm temperature, and press the suds through the fabric. Do not twist or squeeze.

Use a second lather or suds and a third if necessary. There's no economy in stinting on the soap supply. To restore the soft puffiness of the filling every bit of ingrained soil must be removed. Rinse thoroughly in lukewarm water and press out the excess moisture before hanging the quilt to dry.

Spread it between two lines if possible to avoid having it drag along the ground. To redistribute the filling evenly, turn it several times while drying, and when it is dry work it between the fingers. Press lightly with a warm iron and you are ready for the very cold weather.

Dinner Stories

WE'VE OFTEN WONDERED!

A little boy had taken his mother's powder puff, and was in the act of powdering his face when his small sister, aged five, snatched it from him. "You mustn't do that!" she exclaimed. "Only ladies use powder. Gentlemen wash themselves."

Ski in White, Navy

SKI SUITS in white with color are high fashion. This costume consists of navy corduroy trousers and navy cotton mitts. The windbreaker and cap are of white windproof cotton. You will notice the diagonal pleat near the sleeve which gives ample freedom for action. Under the tailored collar is concealed a hood of the same material for stormy weather. The zipper front and lastex shirred side insure warmth and greater protection from the elements.

CALIFORNIA, BAYLOR TAKEN OFF LIST OF TEAMS WITH PERFECT MARKS

WASHINGTON, TEXAS GRIDDERS STAGE UPSETS

Field Goal Keeps Alabama Tide Among Select; Pitt Defeats Notre Dame

TEMPLE LOSES 6 TO 13

Indiana's Margin Placed In Surprise Class

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(UP)—A fine-toothed comb and a magnifying glass may become necessary to uncover a perfect record football team at season's end—if the astonishing parade of upsets continues.

The despoiler erased California and Baylor from the undefeated, untied ranks Saturday. Their downfall, however, was no more surprising than the wallopings absorbed by a dozen other favorites. Alabama, Santa Clara, Colorado, Montana and Lafayette alone remained with clean slates.

California was held to a 0-0 tie by an underated University of Washington eleven, defending champions of the Pacific coast. Baylor succumbed 9-6 to Texas, beaten four times and tied once.

Field Goal Aids

Alabama saved its face with a field goal in the last few minutes to beat a fighting Tulane team, 9-6. Santa Clara scored 25-2 over San Jose State; Colorado stopped Utah 17-7; Montana blanked Gonzaga 23-0; and Lafayette, its goal line crossed for the first time, maintained an unmarred record, 13-6, over Rutgers.

Only one of the undefeated, but tied teams, was beaten, Temple being taken 13-6 by Michigan State. Major elevens, with only ties against their records, won as follows: Yale 19, Brown 0; Dartmouth 33, Princeton 9; Fordham 21, Purdue 3; Pittsburgh 21, Notre Dame 6; Villanova 25, Marquette 7; Holy Cross 12, Colgate 7, and Duke 67, Wake Forest 0.

Nebraska played to a 13-13 standoff with Kansas.

Classified in the upset group were: Indiana 10, Ohio State 0; Illinois 6, Northwestern 0; St. Louis 14, Missouri 7; Army 7, Harvard 6; Florida 6, Georgia 0; Auburn 20, Tennessee 7; Centenary 10, T. C. U. 9; Stanford 7, Southern California 6; Oregon 10, Washington State 6; Pennsylvania State 7, Pennsylvania 0; Rice 26, Arkansas 20; Manhattan 7, Detroit 0.

ALL GRID TEAMS IN PROFESSIONAL LEAGUE DEFEATED

BY UNITED PRESS

National League football standings showed no undefeated teams today. The last holdouts, the Chicago, Bears, had been tumbled by Green Bay's powerful Packers.

Before a record crowd of nearly 45,000 at Chicago, the Packers ran and passed their way to a 24-14 victory.

Detroit went back into third place among the westerners, defeating Cleveland 27-7 before a crowd of 13,000. The idle Chicago Cardinals dropped to fourth.

New York widened its first place lead in the eastern division, scoring a 17-0 shutout over the Pittsburgh Pirates at New York before a crowd of 21,447. The second-place Washington Indians were idle.

Ten thousand fans turned out to see Brooklyn lose another, the sixth this year, 14-10, to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Indiana Overpowers Ohio's Grid Team

It isn't the fault of Mike Kabealo who fumbled, or of Fred Crow who caught a long pass and then couldn't get his legs moving forward that Ohio State gridders were kicked out of the Big Ten title race, Saturday : : : Blame it on the Indiana football team that presented one of the smartest defenses ye janitor has ever placed the lamps on : : : When Ohio lost the ball on the Indiana one-yard line in the first minute of play, the curtain was rung down on the Ohio chances : : : They were behind the eight-ball from that time one : : : There wasn't any one star in the Indiana lineup, because the entire team played ball : : : Reports of injuries keeping some of the boys on the bench were just so many bear stories, because the Hoosiers were in there 100 percent from start to finish : : : Not so of Ohio because Johnny Rabb was hurt before the half ended, and little Nick Wasylik, the nearest thing the Bucks have to a game breaker, was toted off the green on a stretcher. * * *

* * *

Illinois Next Week

The defeat adds a lot of luster to the Illinois-Buck game next Saturday : : : The Illini took Northwestern by a touchdown, Saturday, keeping the highly touted Wildcats from the goalline : : : Ohio defeated the Evanston crew by the same margin. * * *

* * *

Predictions 74.8 Percent

Saturday's predictions were not so hot, 23 being correct, eight wrong, and two tied : : : The percentage was 74.8 : : : Errors were made on the Ohio-Indiana game, Case and Baldwin-Wallace, Marshall and Centre, Dayton-Toledo, Northwestern-Illinois, Penn State-Pennsylvania, Detroit-Manhattan, Baylor-Texas, the former team being chosen in each instance, and losing. * * *

* * *

Pitt Panthers Parade

The Pitt-Notre Dame was everything it was cracked up to be : : : The fighting Irish, who never fought harder, held a 6-0 lead until the fourth period started, then the Panther turned on : : : It was Goldberg, then Stebbins, then Patrick, and touchdown, touchdown, touchdown, three of them going over in that final session : : : This colyum still insists that any team to claim a national title must defeat Pittsburgh : : : It just isn't being done : : : Fordham is about the only team able to tie them and reports are that Fordham and Pitt will be given a football to play with next Fall in an effort to end their scoreless series that has now reached three games in a row.

TWO BUCK FOES TURN BACK THEIR GRID OPPONENTS

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—(UP)—While Ohio State went down to defeat Saturday at the hands of Indiana, the two opponents the Bucks yet have to face this season were turning in triumphs.

Illinois smashed Northwestern's last hope of salvaging any of the championship spoils in the Big Ten by gaining a 6 to 0 upset victory.

Michigan, the traditional opponent of the Bucks, hung up its third straight victory when it came from behind to edge a woefully weak Chicago combine 13 to 12.

Teams which Ohio State already played found the week-end as full of pitfalls as did the Bucks.

Texas Christian, the Bucks initial foe, was beaten 10 to 9 by Centenary; Purdue was trounced 21 to 3 by Fordham; and the University of Southern California was topped 7 to 6 by Stanford.

RECORDS OF ALL STATE GRID TEAMS BLEMISHED

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—(UP)—For the first time since the waning days of the 1934 campaign, Ohio today was without an undefeated and untied collegiate football combination.

The last perfect record team in the state was scratched off the list when the rapidly improving University of Toledo eleven downed the University of Dayton 12 to 7.

CALIFORNIA, BAYLOR TAKEN OFF LIST OF TEAMS WITH PERFECT MARKS

WASHINGTON, TEXAS GRIDDERS STAGE UPSETS

Field Goal Keeps Alabama Tide Among Select; Pitt Defeats Notre Dame

TEMPLE LOSES 6 TO 13

Indiana's Margin Placed In Surprise Class

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(UP)—A fine-toothed comb and a magnifying glass may become necessary to uncover a perfect record football team at season's end—if the astonishing parade of upsets continues.

The despoiler erased California and Baylor from the undefeated, untied ranks Saturday. Their downfall, however, was no more surprising than the wallopings absorbed by a dozen other favorites. Alabama, Santa Clara, Colorado, Montana and Lafayette alone remained with clean slates.

California was held to a 0-0 tie by an underated University of Washington eleven, defending champions of the Pacific coast. Baylor succumbed 9-6 to Texas, beaten four times and tied once.

Field Goal Aids

Alabama saved its face with a field goal in the last few minutes to beat a fighting Tulane team, 9-6. Santa Clara scored 25-2 over San Jose State; Colorado stopped Utah 17-7; Montana blanked Gonzaga 23-0; and Lafayette, its goal line crossed for the first time, maintained an unmarred record, 13-6, over Rutgers.

Only one of the undefeated, but tied teams, was beaten, Temple being taken 13-6 by Michigan State. Major elevens, with only ties against their records, won as follows: Yale 19, Brown 0; Dartmouth 33, Princeton 9; Fordham 21, Purdue 3; Pittsburgh 21, Notre Dame 6; Villanova 25, Marquette 7; Holy Cross 12, Colgate 7, and Duke 67, Wake Forest 0.

Nebraska played to a 13-13 standoff with Kansas.

Classified in the upset group were: Indiana 10, Ohio State 0; Illinois 6, Northwestern 0; St. Louis 14, Missouri 7; Army 7, Harvard 6; Florida 6, Georgia 0; Auburn 20, Tennessee 7; Centenary 10, T. C. U. 9; Stanford 7, Southern California 6; Oregon 10, Washington State 6; Pennsylvania State 7, Pennsylvania 0; Rice 26, Arkansas 20; Manhattan 7, Detroit 0.

ALL GRID TEAMS IN PROFESSIONAL LEAGUE DEFEATED

BY UNITED PRESS

National League football standings showed no undefeated teams today. The last holdouts, the Chicago, Bears, had been tumbled by Green Bay's powerful Packers.

Before a record crowd of nearly 45,000 at Chicago, the Packers ran and passed their way to a 24-14 victory.

Detroit went back into third place among the westerners, defeating Cleveland 27-7 before a crowd of 13,000. The idle Chicago Cardinals dropped to fourth.

New York widened its first place lead in the eastern division, scoring a 17-0 shutout over the Pittsburgh Pirates at New York before a crowd of 21,447. The second-place Washington Indians were idle.

Ten thousand fans turned out to see Brooklyn lose another, the sixth this year, 14-10, to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Indiana Overpowers Ohio's Grid Team

It isn't the fault of Mike Kabealo who fumbled, or of Fred Crow who caught a long pass and then couldn't get his legs moving forward that Ohio State gridders were kicked out of the Big Ten title race, Saturday : : : Blame it on the Indiana football team that presented one of the smartest defenses ye janitor has ever placed the lamps on : : : When Ohio lost the ball on the Indiana one-yard line in the first minute of play, the curtain was rung down on the Ohio chances : : : They were behind the eight-ball from that time one : : : There wasn't any one star in the Indiana lineup, because the entire team played ball : : : Reports of injuries keeping some of the boys on the bench were just so many bear stories, because the Hoosiers were in there 100 percent from start to finish : : : Not so of Ohio because Johnny Rabb was hurt before the half ended, and little Nick Wasylik, the nearest thing the Bucks have to a game breaker, was toted off the green on a stretcher. * * *

* * *

Illinois Next Week

The defeat adds a lot of luster to the Illinois-Buck game next Saturday : : : The Illini took Northwestern by a touchdown, Saturday, keeping the highly touted Wildcats from the goalline : : : Ohio defeated the Evanston crew by the same margin. * * *

* * *

Predictions 74.8 Percent

Saturday's predictions were not so hot, 23 being correct, eight wrong, and two tied : : : The percentage was 74.8 : : : Errors were made on the Ohio-Indiana game, Case and Baldwin-Wallace, Marshall and Centre, Dayton-Toledo, Northwestern-Illinois, Penn State-Pennsylvania, Detroit-Manhattan, Baylor-Texas, the former team being chosen in each instance, and losing. * * *

* * *

Pitt Panthers Parade

The Pitt-Notre Dame was everything it was cracked up to be : : : The fighting Irish, who never fought harder, held a 6-0 lead until the fourth period started, then the Panther turned on : : : It was Goldberg, then Stebbins, then Patrick, and touchdown, touchdown, touchdown, three of them going over in that final session : : : This colyum still insists that any team to claim a national title must defeat Pittsburgh : : : It just isn't being done : : : Fordham is about the only team able to tie them and reports are that Fordham and Pitt will be given a football to play with next Fall in an effort to end their scoreless series that has now reached three games in a row.

TWO BUCK FOES TURN BACK THEIR GRID OPPONENTS

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—(UP)—While Ohio State went down to defeat Saturday at the hands of Indiana, the two opponents the Bucks yet have to face this season were turning in triumphs.

Illinois smashed Northwestern's last hope of salvaging any of the championship spoils in the Big Ten by gaining a 6 to 0 upset victory.

Michigan, the traditional opponent of the Bucks, hung up its third straight victory when it came from behind to edge a woefully weak Chicago combine 13 to 12.

Teams which Ohio State already played found the week-end as full of pitfalls as did the Bucks.

Texas Christian, the Bucks initial foe, was beaten 10 to 9 by Centenary; Purdue was trounced 21 to 3 by Fordham; and the University of Southern California was topped 7 to 6 by Stanford.

RECORDS OF ALL STATE GRID TEAMS BLEMISHED

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—(UP)—For the first time since the waning days of the 1934 campaign, Ohio today was without an undefeated and untied collegiate football combination.

The last perfect record team in the state was scratched off the list when the rapidly improving University of Toledo eleven downed the University of Dayton 12 to 7.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

FORGET EXTRA TRICKS

DON'T TAKE a chance of letting the other fellow lead through your guarded king if there is some way to prevent it, and thereby make your contract sure. Unnecessary finesses, which might produce an overtrick if they work, but put yourself in danger of defeat if they do not, are not sound bridge.

North: ♠ 7 6 5 ♥ J 10 9 ♦ A Q 8 ♣ A Q J 3

West: ♠ A Q J 10 8 ♥ 8 3 ♦ 9 4 3 2 ♣ K 9

East: ♠ 9 2 ♥ 6 4 2 ♦ K 7 5 ♣ 8 6 5 4 2

South: ♠ K 4 3 ♥ A K Q 7 5 ♦ J 10 6 ♣ 10 7

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

West overcalled South's opening bid of 1-Heart, with 1-Spade and North went to 2-Clubs. South rebid his hearts, North assisted and the contract ended in 4-Hearts by South.

West led the diamond 2 and South decided he could make an extra trick if West had been obliged to lead away from the diamond K. He therefore played the diamond 8 and East won with the diamond K. The spade 9 was returned and allowed to hold, but East was able to continue leading the suit with the spade 2. West overtook and cashed three spades.

Had South gone up with his diamond A, he would have made the contract, for after drawing trumps, he could have tried the club finesse. As this happened to be favorable, two spades could have been tossed on the two set up clubs and the contract could have been made.

$175 IN AWARDS TO BE OFFERED FOR EXHIBITS

Picture Shows Scheduled Each Afternoon During Annual Event

FESTIVAL IS FOURTH

Celebration Is Held For Agriculture's Sake

Saltcreek township will hold its fourth annual fair at the school building on Nov. 12 and 13. Prizes amounting to $175 in merchandise and cash will be given as premiums.

Special features of the fair will include free picture shows each afternoon and evening, a livestock parade Friday at 11:30 a. m., pony race Friday afternoon, band concert on Friday evening, baby show Saturday at 10:30 a. m., and a football game on Saturday afternoon.

There will be farm, school exhibits and displays of farm machinery. Admission to the fair is free and the public is invited.

The Saltcreek fair is conducted largely in the interest of agriculture in the township. Boys and girls are not limited as to the number and kinds of exhibits. Each entry must be made in the name of a student enrolled in the school.

WARREN HOFFMAN WINNER OF PRINCE PEACE CONTEST

Warren Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hoffman, Ashville, won the Prince of Peace contest conducted in the village's United Brethren church Sunday evening. He will participate in the contest held in Circleville on Dec. 5.

Many townships and villages are choosing their Prince of Peace representatives.

Hoffman's subject was "The Tragedy of the Model T".

Lauragene Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Cook, of Mt. Sterling, formerly of Circleville, won the Prince of Peace medal in the contest held Sunday evening in the Methodist Episcopal church, Mt. Sterling.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

The mystery of the five husky men who kept Joan Bennett, Helen Vinson and the Walter Wanger Models under hawk-like surveillance on the sets of "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938" was a long time being solved.

The five men were detectives, employed by the producer to keep a watchful eye on the quarter of a million dollars worth of jewelry worn by the star and supporting players in this gay Technicolor musical, which co-stars Joan with Warner Baxter at the Cliftona Theatre tonight and Tuesday.

Only Wanger, Director Irving Cummings and a few of their aides were in on the secret that the jewels were real. Set workers and scores of dress extras working in the fashion show scenes assumed that the dazzling display of jewelry came from the studio prop department.

OHIO SHERIFF ON TRIAL IN MURDER OF G.O.P. LEADER

Roscoe Fowler, of Pomeroy, Faces Second Degree Court Hearing

Meigs county, began a "personal" inquiry, calling Sheriff Fowler as the first of 30 witnesses.

July 21 to Aug. 4—Judge C. E. Peoples, 80-year-old Democratic common pleas jurist, took the initiative in asking county commissioners for $1,000 to "push the investigation;" the Eagles offered $200 for the identity of the assailant. A private detective was called in, and Williamson's body exhumed. The medical report hinted that a blackjack could have caused the skull fracture.

Aug. 4 to Sept. 10—The investigation lagged, until Judge Peoples again demanded action; obtained another $1,000 from the commissioners and hired Crary Davis, Columbus attorney and wartime buddy of the slain man, as special prosecutor.

Sept. 10—Davis called Dana Roush, one-time chief of police and Eagles lodge bartender on the night of the killing, into court as a material witness.

Sept. 13—A special grand jury met to consider the case.

Sept. 27—The grand jury returned an indictment of second-degree murder and assault with a deadly weapon, "namely a blackjack," against Sheriff Fowler. Simultaneously, the jury placed indictments against the Eagles lodge and its local trustees for selling liquor after 2:30 a. m., on Sundays, and gambling and slot machines.

Oct. 5—Sheriff Fowler was suspended from office on order of Judge Peoples after petitions demanding his ouster were filed with the court.

MAIZO MILLS, INC. NOW OPERATING CORN COB PLANT

Real estate of the Maizo Mills, W. Main street, has been transferred to the Maizo Mills, Inc., an organization now operating the mills.

The real estate was sold at public auction last Summer to the receiver for the First National bank, Toledo. It was transferred later to Eunice L. Harrington, wife of Dana Harrington, Columbus. Mr. Harrington purchased the plant machinery and equipment, finished and unfinished materials, accounts receivable and patent rights relating to the manufacture of corn cob products. Mr. Harrington purchased the equipment for the benefit of himself and other creditors who organized the Maizo Mills, Inc.

The real estate was recently transferred to the company by Mrs. Harrington.

HUNTER CLAIMS HE KILLED DEER WITH BOW, ARROW

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 8—(UP)—Bill Van Vorst was back in his teller's cage at the Union bank of Grand Rapids today, but he had to answer a lot of questions about the deer he killed Saturday near Bitely, Mich., with a bow and arrow.

Conservation officers said they believe it is the first time a deer has ever been killed in such a manner in lower Michigan.

Van Vorst, with his 70-pound yew bow in hand and packet of steel arrows at his side, was waiting beside a deer runway Saturday after hunting unsuccessfully all last week. He said he had seen 100 deer during the week but failed to score a hit. When a 115-pound spike-horned buck came galloping into view, Van Vorst took aim on the run and fired from three rods away. The arrow pierced the animal fatally near the shoulder.

DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION FOR LIQUOR HABIT

A doctor's prescription, successfully used for years for those addicted to the use of alcohol, is now offered to the public as Alcoban. It is not habit forming and can be taken in liquor, tea, coffee, food, or any other liquid, with or without the user's knowledge. Aids the sufferer to overcome the craving for liquor and to build up his resistance. Many loved ones saved and brought back to a life of usefulness. At all good druggists. If your favorite druggist is out of Alcoban, he will get it for you. Ask him today. —Ad.

Duke, in Paris, Cancels Trip

FROM Paris, where this latest picture of the Duke of Windsor was taken, the former British monarch announced he had cancelled his American trip after two days of attempting to guage the extent of resentment in American labor circles against his personal representative, Charles E. Bedaux. In this photo, the duke, looking ill at ease, is answering questions of reporters.

McGRADY MEETS WITH PRESIDENT TO TALK LABOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — (UP) — Edward F. McGrady, former assistant secretary of labor, today discussed with President Roosevelt" the general labor situation."

His visit preceded by two hours the resumption of American Federation of Labor-Committee for Industrial Organization peace conferences here.

McGrady, who became the administration's ace labor mediator before his retirement, said he talked "a little" with the president about the peace conferences but emphasized that he was taking no active part in the negotiating.

McGrady said that he and the president had talked about business in general as well as labor. He said he had no appointment in Washington but that he might see John L. Lewis on a personal visit.

Meantime Lewis conferred in secret caucus with the entire C.I.O. delegation. It was learned from a member of the C.I.O. committee that a new proposal to facilitate a truce was being entertained.

This official said it had been suggested that both the A. F. of L. and the C.I.O. be designated as autonomous departments and run by a "united labor council" selected by both groups.

However, it was pointed out this method of operation could only be effected after the two committees had agreed on a formula dividing the industrial field between them for organizing purposes.

REPORT OF GREAT CROP FORCES CUT IN COTTON PRICE

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(UP)—Forecast by the government for a 1937 cotton crop of 18,243,000 bales—The largest in history—brought declines of 10 to 18 points in cotton futures today. All months dropped to new lows for the present contracts with January selling at 7½ cents a pound.

Extent of the decline was limited by the fact that prior to the report prices were as much as 136 points below the government loan value.

DOWAGER QUEEN MARIE MAY ENTER HOSPITAL

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Nov. 8 — (UP) — Dowager Queen Marie, ill for months, was reported today to be planning a trip to Vienna to undergo sanitarium treatment.

Palace attendants said her condition had been "unsatisfactory" for weeks, but denied that there had been any new complications.

She fell ill last March but apparently had been on the road to complete recovery last Summer. At that time it was reported her illness was due partly to reducing treatments which left her weak when she had been attacked by inflenza.

Plan Termed Balance Wheel To Assure Prosperity For Farmers

loan to non-cooperators, and a "penalty tax on each bushel marketed or fed in excess of the marketing quota," Wallace said.

In case the granary "should overflow," he suggested loans to non-cooperators "at a rate something like 70 percent as high as to the cooperators and they might be required to hold a certain percentage of their corn off the market until the granary is no longer overflowing.

"As to the government money loaned," Wallace said, "I want to point out that in 1937 the government is offering its fifth consecutive corn loan without yet having lost a dollar on these transactions. As for any future losses that may be incurred in the loan program, these might be partly or wholly defrayed by a moderate tax on each bushel of corn processed.

Confined to Corn Belt

The loan and corn sealing programs should be confined to the corn belt, which includes southeastern South Dakota, eastern Nebraska, eastern Kansas, northern Missouri, Iowa, southern Minnesota, southwestern Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, western Ohio and a few counties in southern Michigan, Wallace said.

Wallace suggested farmers "might plan for immediate future to grow somewhere around 2,400,000,000 bushels of corn a year." This would mean slightly more than 93,000,000 acres planted in corn. The corn acreage this year is 96,000,000.

HARRY NEFF DIES AT HIS HOME IN ASHVILLE AT 71

Harry Neff, 71, died at his home in Ashville at 6:30 p. m. Saturday of paralysis. Mr. Neff was the son of Jacob and Harriett Johnson Neff.

He is survived by his widow, Ida Coon Neff, and sixteen children, eleven by his first wife and five by his widow. The children are Mrs. Mary Matthew, Port Clinton; Mrs. Erma Stonerock, Wesley, Mrs. Alice Shoemaker, Mrs. Hattie Pettibone, Mrs. Ruth Sampsill, Mrs. Hazel McCosky and Lewis Neff, all of Columbus; Samuel of Richmond Dale; Clark, Charles, Eugene, Donald, Robert, Janette and Betty, all of Ashville; one brother, Samuel of Gallipolis, and two sisters, Mrs. Libby Ehman, Grove City, and Mrs. Laura Kidwell, Indianapolis.

Funeral services will be Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. in the Ashville Church of Christ with the Rev. James Hicks officiating. Burial will be in Reber Hill cemetery in charge of E. F. Schlegel.

INVESTIGATION SLATED

Howard Anderson, 48, of Circleville Route 1, was arrested early Sunday, police reported, and posted $100 bond to report later in the mayor's court. Chief William McCrady said Anderson was arrested on an investigation charge based on a traffic violation. Three men were arrested by officers Saturday night for intoxication. One posted $5 bond to report later in court and the others were released.

SIXTY EAGLES PRESENT FOR DISTRICT MEETING

Sixty members of the Eagles lodge attended the district initiation held in the Circleville lodge Sunday afternoon. Nine candidates were initiated. The degree team of the Springfield lodge presented ritualistic work.

Although 75 members from various aeries were expected at the initiation, the only candidates present were those of the Circleville lodge. Lodges of the district include Springfield, London, Greenfield, Washington C. H., Hillsboro, and Columbus West Side.

Thomas J. Monger, Common Pleas judge of Jackson, was the principal speaker.

DETTY DIVORCE

Mrs. Marjorie Detty, Circleville Route 2, was granted a divorce in Common Pleas court Saturday from Carl Detty, address unknown, for neglect of duty.

Warren Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hoffman, Ashville, won the Prince of Peace contest conducted in the village's United Brethren church Sunday evening. He will participate in the contest held in Circleville on Dec. 5.

Many townships and villages are choosing their Prince of Peace representatives.

Hoffman's subject was "The Tragedy of the Model T".

Lauragene Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Cook, of Mt. Sterling, formerly of Circleville, won the Prince of Peace medal in the contest held Sunday evening in the Methodist Episcopal church, Mt. Sterling.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

The mystery of the five husky men who kept Joan Bennett, Helen Vinson and the Walter Wanger Models under hawk-like surveillance on the sets of "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938" was a long time being solved.

The five men were detectives, employed by the producer to keep a watchful eye on the quarter of a million dollars worth of jewelry worn by the star and supporting players in this gay Technicolor musical, which co-stars Joan with Warner Baxter at the Cliftona Theatre tonight and Tuesday.

Only Wanger, Director Irving Cummings and a few of their aides were in on the secret that the jewels were real. Set workers and scores of dress extras working in the fashion show scenes assumed that the dazzling display of jewelry came from the studio prop department.

OHIO SHERIFF ON TRIAL IN MURDER OF G.O.P. LEADER

Roscoe Fowler, of Pomeroy, Faces Second Degree Court Hearing

Meigs county, began a "personal" inquiry, calling Sheriff Fowler as the first of 30 witnesses.

July 21 to Aug. 4—Judge C. E. Peoples, 80-year-old Democratic common pleas jurist, took the initiative in asking county commissioners for $1,000 to "push the investigation;" the Eagles offered $200 for the identity of the assailant. A private detective was called in, and Williamson's body exhumed. The medical report hinted that a blackjack could have caused the skull fracture.

Aug. 4 to Sept. 10—The investigation lagged, until Judge Peoples again demanded action; obtained another $1,000 from the commissioners and hired Crary Davis, Columbus attorney and wartime buddy of the slain man, as special prosecutor.

Sept. 10—Davis called Dana Roush, one-time chief of police and Eagles lodge bartender on the night of the killing, into court as a material witness.

Sept. 13—A special grand jury met to consider the case.

Sept. 27—The grand jury returned an indictment of second-degree murder and assault with a deadly weapon, "namely a blackjack," against Sheriff Fowler. Simultaneously, the jury placed indictments against the Eagles lodge and its local trustees for selling liquor after 2:30 a. m., on Sundays, and gambling and slot machines.

Oct. 5—Sheriff Fowler was suspended from office on order of Judge Peoples after petitions demanding his ouster were filed with the court.

MAIZO MILLS, INC. NOW OPERATING CORN COB PLANT

Real estate of the Maizo Mills, W. Main street, has been transferred to the Maizo Mills, Inc., an organization now operating the mills.

The real estate was sold at public auction last Summer to the receiver for the First National bank, Toledo. It was transferred later to Eunice L. Harrington, wife of Dana Harrington, Columbus. Mr. Harrington purchased the plant machinery and equipment, finished and unfinished materials, accounts receivable and patent rights relating to the manufacture of corn cob products. Mr. Harrington purchased the equipment for the benefit of himself and other creditors who organized the Maizo Mills, Inc.

The real estate was recently transferred to the company by Mrs. Harrington.

HUNTER CLAIMS HE KILLED DEER WITH BOW, ARROW

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 8—(UP)—Bill Van Vorst was back in his teller's cage at the Union bank of Grand Rapids today, but he had to answer a lot of questions about the deer he killed Saturday near Bitely, Mich., with a bow and arrow.

Conservation officers said they believe it is the first time a deer has ever been killed in such a manner in lower Michigan.

Van Vorst, with his 70-pound yew bow in hand and packet of steel arrows at his side, was waiting beside a deer runway Saturday after hunting unsuccessfully all last week. He said he had seen 100 deer during the week but failed to score a hit. When a 115-pound spike-horned buck came galloping into view, Van Vorst took aim on the run and fired from three rods away. The arrow pierced the animal fatally near the shoulder.

Duke, in Paris, Cancels Trip

FROM Paris, where this latest picture of the Duke of Windsor was taken, the former British monarch announced he had cancelled his American trip after two days of attempting to guage the extent of resentment in American labor circles against his personal representative, Charles E. Bedaux. In this photo, the duke, looking ill at ease, is answering questions of reporters.

McGRADY MEETS WITH PRESIDENT TO TALK LABOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — (UP) — Edward F. McGrady, former assistant secretary of labor, today discussed with President Roosevelt "the general labor situation."

His visit preceded by two hours the resumption of American Federation of Labor-Committee for Industrial Organization peace conferences here.

McGrady, who became the administration's ace labor mediator before his retirement, said he talked "a little" with the president about the peace conferences but emphasized that he was taking no active part in the negotiating.

McGrady said that he and the president had talked about business in general as well as labor. He said he had no appointment in Washington but that he might see John L. Lewis on a personal visit.

Meantime Lewis conferred in secret caucus with the entire C.I.O. delegation. It was learned from a member of the C.I.O. committee that a new proposal to facilitate a truce was being entertained.

This official said it had been suggested that both the A. F. of L. and the C.I.O. be designated as autonomous departments and run by a "united labor council" selected by both groups.

However, it was pointed out this method of operation could only be effected after the two committees had agreed on a formula dividing the industrial field between them for organizing purposes.

REPORT OF GREAT CROP FORCES CUT IN COTTON PRICE

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(UP)—Forecast by the government for a 1937 cotton crop of 18,243,000 bales—The largest in history—brought declines of 10 to 18 points in cotton futures today. All months dropped to new lows for the present contracts with January selling at 7½ cents a pound.

Extent of the decline was limited by the fact that prior to the report prices were as much as 136 points below the government loan value.

DOWAGER QUEEN MARIE MAY ENTER HOSPITAL

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Nov. 8 — (UP) — Dowager Queen Marie, ill for months, was reported today to be planning a trip to Vienna to undergo sanitarium treatment.

Palace attendants said her condition had been "unsatisfactory" for weeks, but denied that there had been any new complications.

She fell ill last March but apparently had been on the road to complete recovery last Summer. At that time it was reported her illness was due partly to reducing treatments which left her weak when she had been attacked by influenza.

STATES IN CORN BELT TAKE PART IN CONFERENCES

Plan Termed Balance Wheel To Assure Prosperity For Farmers

loan to non-cooperators, and a "penalty tax on each bushel marketed or fed in excess of the marketing quota," Wallace said.

In case the granary "should overflow," he suggested loans to non-cooperators "at a rate something like 70 percent as high as to the cooperators and they might be required to hold a certain percentage of their corn off the market until the granary is no longer overflowing.

"As to the government money loaned," Wallace said, "I want to point out that in 1937 the government is offering its fifth consecutive corn loan without yet having lost a dollar on these transactions. As for any future losses that may be incurred in the loan program, these might be partly or wholly defrayed by a moderate tax on each bushel of corn processed.

Confined to Corn Belt

The loan and corn sealing programs should be confined to the corn belt, which includes southeastern South Dakota, eastern Nebraska, eastern Kansas, northern Missouri, Iowa, southern Minnesota, southwestern Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, western Ohio and a few counties in southern Michigan, Wallace said.

Wallace suggested farmers "might plan for immediate future to grow somewhere around 2,400,000,000 bushels of corn a year." This would mean slightly more than 93,000,000 acres planted in corn. The corn acreage this year is 96,000,000.
